PREFATORY NOTE.

The arrangement of the book is on the following lines. We have divided it into three Parts. The first part contains the Indian Independence Act, 1947, and the reports of the Boundary Commissions relating to the Punjab, Bengal and Sylhet District in Assam. In the second part is given the Government of India Act, 1935, incorporating the various amendments, adaptations and modifications made from time to time, ending with the India Provisional Constitution (Second Amendment) Order, 1947. Part III contains the various Orders made within recent months by the Governor-General in exercise of the powers conferred on him by S 9 of the Indian Independence Act, so far as they relate to India. All Orders made up to the end of October, 1947, are included. The different Orders in Council made prior to the 'appointed day', also form part of the statutory material of the Constitution, but it has not been possible to include them in the book. The three Parts are preceded by an Introduction, which gives a general survey of the constitutional position.

We had intended to make the book available to the public by the 15th of September. The disturbed conditions in the city and difficulties in the Press have held up the publication till now, and even now the work has had to be rushed in the Press by new men. We make our apologies to the readers for typographical errors which may have crept in. The errors which have come to our notice are indicated in the list printed below.

We tender our thanks to Sir Patrick Spens for the interest he has taken in the preparation of this book and for his Foreword.

INTRODUCTION

As the title indicates, this publication deals with the Constitution of the Dominion of India as it is now in force. That constitution is given in Parts I, II and III, which follow. Here, we propose to survey the position broadly and generally. We make no long excursions into past history, most of which has been forgotten or will soon be forgotten.

A brief historical retrospect may however be found useful in comprehending the present position. For, as pointed out by the British Prime Minister¹, the Indian Independence Act, 1947, formed the culminating point in a long course of events. He referred to the action taken by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom as "the fulfilment of Britain's mission in India". The beginning of the twentieth century marked the conception of a new idea and the adoption of a new policy by Great Britain in its relations with the dominion of India. The past thirty years have witnessed the gradual growth and development of that idea and that policy. The Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909, the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms of 1919, the Report of the Indian Statutory Commission, the deliberations of the Round Table Conferences in London, the Government of India Act of 1935, the Cripps Mission of 1942, the visit of the British Cabinet Delegation in 1946 and the further discussions which followed, are all steps on the road that led up eventually to the setting up of the two independent Dominions of India and Pakistan.

The pre-1919 set up of government was simple enough. It was unitary in character. Its cardinal features were (1) the concentration of all authority at the Centre, (2) the supremacy of the executive in the field of administration as also that of legislation and (3) the ultimate responsibility of the British Parliament for the whole of Indian Government. The supremacy of the Parliament of the United Kingdom over the Government of India and that of the Government of India over local Governments was firmly established; and so was the principle of unity in the administration of the country. The value of the reforms of 1909 lay chiefly in the establishment of the principle of representative government in the Provinces. The "progressive realization of responsible government" was declared to be the policy of the British Parliament in 1919, and as an experiment a measure of responsibility in the provincial field was introduced in the new Constitution of that year. "Responsibility" wrote the authors of the Montagu-Chelmsford Report in 1917, "is the savour of popular government and that savour the present councils wholly lack." The system of government devised in the Act of 1919 was known as dyarchy or dual government. The Provinces were the domain in which the experiment of responsible government was to be made. Two spheres of government were introduced in the provincial field, one a self-governing sphere, with certain subjects known as "nation-building" subjects transferred to Indian hands, and in the other the old system of government was retained, with certain "reserved" subjects. A gradual enlargement of the "transferred" sphere and the ultimate extinction of the "reserved" sphere was the aim which Parliament had in view. The government of the country still remained unitary in character, there was no federal element present then, there was only a delegation of large powers to the Provinces, effected by means of statutory rules known as the Devolution Rules.

The next stage was the Government of India Act 1935, an Act which was passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom after nearly 10 years of discussions in India and England, superseding all previous enactments and which assigned a definite constitutional position on a federal basis to the Centre and its constituent units. The statutory material of that Constitution was not confined to the 321 sections of the Act, but extended to a number of Schedules to the Act and Orders in Council passed under the Act, and also other important documents such as the Barar Agreement, the Instruments of Instructions to the Governor-General and the Provincial Governors, Letters Patent, etc. The avowed object of the new Constitution was to extend the sphere of responsible government throughout the Provinces, subject to certain safeguards, and to introduce responsible government at the Centre with reservations and safeguards. In other words, the "double rule" which had hitherto prevailed in the Provinces was to be transferred to the Centre. The old unitary form of government was abandoned and a new federal form adopted, in which both the Indian States and the British Indian Provinces were to function as constituent units, the former self-acting and the latter self-governing. The Princes themselves welcomed the idea of a great Federation of India, and advantage was taken of their declaration to join the Federation.

The main features of the Act of 1935 were as follows. Firstly, the Act developed provincial autonomy by giving the Provinces a separate legal personality and freeing them largely from central control. It established full responsible government subject to safeguards in all the eleven Provinces. Secondly, it provided for the establishment of "Federation of India" by which was meant the greater federation, comprising both Indian States and British Indian Provinces, with a Central Government and Legislature for the management of central subjects. Thirdly, the dyarchical form, abolished in the Provinces, was reproduced at the Centre. The subjects of foreign affairs, defence and ecclesiastical affairs were reserved for the control of the Governor-General, the other central subjects being transferred to Ministers, subject to safeguards as in the Provinces. This part of the Act not having come into force, because of the indecision of the Princes, there was in force up till the 15th August 1947 a transitional government based mainly on the old system. The provisions relating to the Central Judiciary (the Federal Court) were, however, put in operation with the exception of one section (s 206). Lastly, the separate communal electorates which had been introduced in 1909 and repeated in the 1919 Constitution were retained, and the seats were distributed on the lines of an award given by the British Prime Minister, known as the "Communal Award".

The first thing of importance to note in the 1935 Constitution was the geographical change effected by it from the 1st of April, 1937. That date marked the regrouping of the Provinces into eleven autonomous units and the shedding of outlying terrains, namely Burma and Aden. The Government of India Act which was then in force was repealed by the new Act, with the exception of the Preamble which set out the aim of the British Parliament. The method adopted by Parliament was first to resume into the hands of the Crown all right authority and jurisdiction in and over the territories of British India which had previously been delegated to different authorities, and then to redistribute the powers between the Central Government and the Provinces. Next in order of importance was the introduction of "Provincial Autonomy" on the said date. The old unitary system of government was replaced from that date onwards by the new federal conditions. As from that date there were no longer in India a number of Provinces under the tutelage of a Central Government, but eleven autonomous States "pulsing with a vigorous life of their own and dividing with the Government of India the legislative and executive powers of government". What might be called a British India Federation thus arose, a Federation of eleven Provinces associated together in an organic union.

As for responsible government in the 1935 Constitution, reliance was placed mainly on two sections in the Act, one in part II and the other in Part III, namely, sections 9 and 50, relating to Councils of Ministers to aid and advise the Governor-General and the Governors respectively. It is said that those two "vital sections", together with the provision in the Instrument of Instructions directing the Governor-General and Governors to select Ministers from among the majority party in the Legislature, were meant to establish responsible government in the country. Pointed attention was drawn some time ago to those sections by an eminent authority, who made the following observation¹: "Those are the provisions, as Lord Durham's great report pointed out over a hundred years ago, which established responsible government, and responsible government once established, the disappearance of restrictions and limitations on the powers of Ministers could only be a matter of time". Part II of the Act of 1935 remained however inoperative during a whole decade and the government at the Centre was carried on, until recently, mainly under the provisions of the old Government of India Act, which were kept alive in the Ninth Schedule to the Act of 1935. Hence the Centre did not witness the anticipated growth of a responsible popular ministry. But the setting up of an "Interim Government" in September 1946 made up for much leeway and produced quick results. The India (Central Government and Legislature) Act, a Parliamentary Statute of 1946, made it possible for the formation of the "Interim Government" on the lines indicated by His Majesty's Government in the Statement issued by the British Cabinet Delegation and the Viceroy on May 16, 1946.¹

The Act of 1935 marked the beginning of the final stage in the constitutional evolution of India. The framers of the Act had anticipated a steady process of development on conventional lines, a process of freedom slowly broadening down from precedent to precedent. Hence there was no provision made in the Act for a further revision, as had been done in the earlier Act. It was emphasized by official spokesmen that the provisions of the Act which precluded full self-government were only transitional. In his evidence before the Joint Parliamentary Committee, Sir Samuel Hoare, the then Secretary of State for India, said "In course of time, other Acts of Parliament will be necessary, more to recognize a state of affairs that is in existence than to make actually new changes." The final act of settlement is the passing by the Parliament of the United Kingdom of the Indian Independence Act in July 1947. That Act does no more than recognize a state of affairs actually in existence. One marked change has been brought about by it, namely, the creation of two independent Dominions, instead of one, but even that may be said to be the recognition of an existing state of affairs.

Before proceeding further, we may allude briefly to the theory and practice of Dominion autonomy as it has developed in the British Commonwealth of Nations within the last thirty years. It was at the Imperial Conference of 1907 that the word "Dominion" with its technical denotation first emerged, and the succeeding Conferences attempted to define the position of independence which the Dominions were claiming for themselves. The Conference of 1926 recorded its epoch-making decision in a formal resolution that the members of the group of self-governing communities composed of Great Britain and the Dominions were "autonomous communities within the British Empire, 'equal in status, in no way subordinate to one another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations". In the words of Prof. Keith, Dominion autonomy demands that the legislation of the Dominions shall be completed on the authority of their own Parliaments, in which the Governor-General must act without interference by the Imperial Government on the same lines as does the King in the United Kingdom. The doctrine of the supremacy of Imperial legislation in its application to the Dominions is gone. The power of the Imperial Parliament to legislate on succession to the throne or the royal title is admitted, but subject to the rule that any change effected requires the assent of the Dominions also. Further, the territorial limitation of Dominion legislation has disappeared entirely. Reality of autonomy is secured in external affairs. The status of the Dominions thus approximates to sovereign independence.

It was that sovereign independent status which came to be legally recognized by the Statute of Westminster in 1931. That statute, like the present statute of Indian independence, did no more than dot the i's and cross the t's of constitutional practices which had already been known and recognized. Non-legal rules and practices indicating further advance in thought have emerged within recent years. One question of importance which has been debated is whether the Dominions have the right to secede from the Commonwealth. It is idle to speculate on this theoretical aspect. All that can be said is that the group of independent communities which constitute the Commonwealth have thought it advantageous to cohere, and there the matter ends. The concept of the Commonwealth is in the process of development. It is not static. Referring to the two new independent Dominions which were being set up on the 15th of August, the British Prime Minister remarked in the House of Commons on the 10th of July 1947 that that action of Parliament was a sign of the strength and vitality of the British Empire. He added: "There have been great Empires in the past in which many nations have been brought together in one polity, but they perished because their rigidity of structure did not allow of growth, and, because the peoples which composed it were subjected to the will of one dominant race". The British Commo-wealth of Nations survives today, and has survived through the strain of two great wars, precisely because it is constantly developing, and because it has throughout the years steadily changed from an Empire, in which the power of control rested with Britain, to a partnership of free people inspired by common ideals and united in a common interest."

We may now proceed to a comparison of the two statutes, to understand the relative position of the new Dominions of India and Pakistan. It may first be noted that there is no statutory definition of the word "Dominion". As early as 1921, Mr Lloyd George observed that it was difficult and dangerous to define the status of a Dominion. The Dominions that are governed by the Statute of Westminster are only named in that statute, and they are Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the Irish Free State and Newfoundland. Obviously, it would not do to include in the list India and Pakistan. Speaking on the Government of India Bill more than 12 years ago, the Attorney-General in His Majesty's Government gave the following explanation of the words "due place of India" occurring in the Instrument of Instructions to the Governor-General. He said "That place must be, in the very nature of the country, something not quite the same as the place, shall I say of New Zealand or of South Africa or of the other Dominions. India is a far different proposition altogether. I have no doubt that India will attain her due place amongst His Majesty's Dominions, but that is not to say that the problems with which she will have to deal will be problems that will be settled in precisely the same way as those in which similar problems are settled in connection with His Majesty's other Dominions". In other words, the Dominions associated together within the British Commonwealth are not all square edifices of precisely the same nature. India and Pakistan have therefore been set up as Dominions by a separate and self-contained enactment, by which they are governed for the time being.

It is significant that the comprehensive preamble to the Statute of Westminster is replaced by a brief and simple statement of the object of the Indian Independence Act. In the third paragraph of the preamble to the Statute of Westminster, it is stated: "No law hereafter made by the Parliament of the United Kingdom shall extend to any of the Dominions otherwise than at the request and consent of that Dominion". This provision amounts to a formal renunciation by the British Parliament of its legislative supremacy over the Dominions, but the effect of the last part of the sentence quoted above, read with section 4, is to place it in a position of pre-eminence over the Dominion Parliaments. Further, the powers conferred on a Dominion under the Statute of 1931 to repeal or amend British Parliamentary statutes extends only to the repeal or amendment of any existing or future Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, so far as it is part of the law of the Dominion. The Statute of Westminster itself could not be repealed or amended. That statute is by its terms as well as by those of similar Acts simultaneously passed by Dominion Parliaments unalterable by those Parliaments. The corresponding provision in the Act of 1947 says that each of the new Dominions can repeal or amend "this or any existing or future Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom" (s. 6(2)). The language of sub-section (4) of section 6 of the Independence Act is also noteworthy. It runs as follows: "No Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom passed on or after the appointed day shall extend to either of the new Dominions unless it is extended thereto by a law of the legislature of the Dominion". The difference in the language employed in the two Acts is significant. Whereas in the case of the Dominions of the Statute of Westminster type Parliament of the United Kingdom can legislate for a Dominion, though at the request of the Dominion, in the case of India and Pakistan the effective legislating authority is the Legislature of the Dominion itself, not an outside authority.

Apart from the direct implications of the Statute, there are other aspects of the position of the Dominions, for not all aspects are covered by statute. Among the more important ones may be mentioned the independence of the judiciary. In the judicial sphere, the practice has been that the Privy Council in England functions as the supreme court of appeal from the decisions of the High Courts in the Dominions. Strictly speaking it is an exercise of the prerogative of the Crown to grant special leave to appeal. It is also embodied in an Act of Parliament passed in 1844 (the Judicial Committee Act). But there is nothing to prevent the Dominions from passing a law prohibiting appeals to the Privy Council, for, the rule of repugnancy under s. 2 of the Colonial Laws Validdity Act does not operate in the case of the Dominions. Some of the Dominions have in fact passed legislation to that effect, e.g. the Irish Free State By the Constitution (Amendment No 22) Act, 1933, Eire has provided (1) that no appeal shall lie from a decision of the Supreme Court or of any other Court in the Irish Free State to His Majesty in Council and (2) that it shall not be lawful for any person to petition His Majesty for leave to bring any such appeal. Attention may also be drawn in this connection to a recent decision of the Privy Council in an appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada General for Ontario v Attorney for General Canada [1947 A.C. 127 (J.C.)] In that case it was urged before the Board that to interpret the Statute of Westminster as vesting in the Dominion Parliament a power which it did not before possess was in effect to repeal or amend, or at least to alter, the British North America Act. Their Lordships refused to accept that reasoning. They held that necessarily the effect of the Statute of Westminster was to amend and alter the Act in so far as from the operation of the Statute there arose a new power in the legislatures of both the Dominion and the Provinces Bill 9, introduced into the Canadian Parliament in 1939 and entitled "An Act to amend the Supreme Court Act of Canada", provided that "the Supreme Court shall have, hold and exercise exclusive ultimate appellate civil and criminal jurisdiction within and for Canada, and the judgment of the Court shall in all cases be final and conclusive" and that "notwithstanding any Royal prerogative or anything contained in any Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom or any Act of the Parliament of Canada no appeal shall lie or be brought from any court within Canada to any court of appeal, tribunal or authority by which in the United Kingdom appeals or petitions to His Majesty in Council may be ordered to be heard". The bill further provided that the Judicial Committee Acts 1833 and 1844 and all orders, rules or regulations made thereunder, were repealed in so far as they were part of the law of Canada. The vires of the proposed legislation came to be challenged. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council held that Bill 9 was wholly infra vires the Parliament of Canada.

Another aspect arising for consideration is the position of the new Dominions in the eye of international law. Certain rights have accrued to and obligations incurred by India as a member of the United Nations. The question is, which of the two States is now to be recognized as the "successor State"? A statement attributed to the Secretary-General of the United Nations Organization is to the following effect "The situation is one in which part of an existing State breaks off and becomes a new State. On this analysis there is no change in the international status of India, it continues as a State with all treaty rights and obligations of membership in the United Nations. The territory which breaks off—Pakistan—will be a new State". In other words, the diminished International re- State does not cease to exist. There is lations no desaggregation totale and therefore no extinction of the international personality of the original State of India. The purist may hesitate to accept the position indicated above, but as a practical solution of the problem it has its merits. By mutual agreement the two new States have come to such an arrangement, and there is therefore no scope for any unrealistic and academic discussions on the subject. The Governor-General has accordingly made an Order, in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by s 9 of the Independence Act, known as the Indian Independence (International Arrangements) Order, 1947¹, providing for the devolution of international rights and obligations.

An important outcome of the development of Dom-Dominion National- nion autonomy has been the tendency to-Bill by create a Dominion nationality. It is earnestly hoped that the new Dominions of India and Pakistan will also witness the growth of a sturdy Dominion nationality which will transcend communal and religious barriers. The result of the common allegiance of the Dominions to the Crown has been the promotion of friendly and cordial relations between the Dominions inter se. It is hoped that a similar result will follow the setting up of the two Dominions in the Indian sub-continent. As one member of the House of Commons, at the Committee stage of the Bill, put it, the frontiers between the two must be like the frontier between the United States and Canada, "where one can see no guard and where there are miles and miles of friendly contact".
The various decisions of the Imperial Conferences which preceded the formation of the Dominions under the Statute of Westminster do not necessarily govern the new Dominions. But India and Pakistan are not likely

~~Dominion rela-~~ to remain unaffected by the spirit which underlies those decisions In answer to a question specifically put to him whether and to what extent the new Dominions acceded to the decisions of the Imperial Conferences, the British Prime Minister replied "We are dealing here with a particular status, not so to speak, of agreements made under that status, but, I should say, under various agreements reached before The entry of the new Dominions would be a matter for their consideration" As to relations between the United Kingdom and the new Dominions, we can only refer to the observations made by the British Prime Minister in the House of Commons on 10th July 1947. He said . "It has been our intention that there should be negotiated and concluded, simultaneously with the transfer of power, treaties or agreements covering matters arising out of the transfer of power in India Owing to the course of events in India it has not been possible for such agreements to be negotiated It is only since the statement of His Majesty's Government of 3rd June that it has become clear that the transfer of power will be to two separate States Apart from matters arising out of the transfer of power, there are other important matters on which we hope to have negotiations with the Indian and Pakistan Governments. We desire to establish, by free negotiation, close, cordial, and effective arrangements with both the new Dominions in all fields affecting our common interests, and particularly in regard to defence matters and in the economic field"

We may now proceed to a detailed consideration of the provisions of the great charter of Indian Independence The Independence Act, 1947 makes provision for the setting up in India of two independent Dominions, substitutes other provisions for certain provisions of the Government of India Act, 1935, which apply outside the Dominions, and provides for other matters consequential on or connected with the setting up of the Dominions It passed through both Houses of Parliament and received the Royal assent in a remarkably short space of time and became law on the 18th July 1947 It has given retrospective effect to the steps taken by His Excellency the Viceroy in accordance with the announcement made by His Majesty's Government on the 3rd June, 1947 Thus all action taken by him since that date has received legal sanctity The Act is a document of extraordinary simplicity and consists of no more than twenty sections and three schedules. It was possible to attain this simplicity, because it left all other matters to be dealt with by the Governor-General. The Act is more an enabling measure than a detailed expression of Parliament's intentions or policy.

The first section of the Independence Act refers to New Dominions the new Dominions and provides that as from the "appointed day", there shall be set up in India two independent Dominions known respectively as India and Pakistan. Explaining this provision in the Bill, the Prime Minister of Great Britain observed in the House of Commons¹ "The British Commonwealth of Nations is so unique that its nature is still not fully comprehended. Membership of the British Commonwealth, in the words of the Prime Minister of New Zealand, is independence with something added, not independence with something taken away! In this Bill we set up two independent Dominions, free and equal, of no less status than the United Kingdom or the Dominion of Canada, completely free in all respects from any control by this country, but united by a common allegiance to the Sovereign and by a community of ideas receiving from their membership of the Commonwealth great advantages but in no way suffering any restriction. The title of this Bill expresses this fact, that the independence which has been the goal for so long of many Indians can be and, I believe, will be realised within the British Commonwealth of Nations". The word "independent" was added for historical and psychological reasons. As for the particular names selected for the Dominions, he said that they were the names by which the spokesmen of the Indian parties wished the Dominions to be called. He added that it was within the power of the Dominions, after they were set up, to change the names if they so desired. The "appointed day" was fixed as the 15th August 1947.

Sections 2, 3, and 4 which deal with the extent of Their territories the territories of the two Dominions, give effect to the methods which were prescribed in the announcement made on June 3, 1947, whereby the people through their representatives were given the opportunity of deciding on the division of territory. It had been decided that Bengal and the Punjab should be divided and that the future of the North-West

Frontier Province and of Sylhet District in Assam should be determined by means of referenda. As a result of the referenda, Sylhet has gone into the new Pakistan area of Bengal and the North-West Frontier Province has been included in the Dominion of Pakistan. The detailed delimitation of boundaries was left to be done by Commissions set up for the purpose known as Boundary Commissions. The reports of these Commissions are given elsewhere.¹ As the members of both the Bengal and the Punjab Commissions were not able to agree among themselves, the award of the Chairman has, in accordance with the provision contained in section 3 (4) and section 43 of the Indian Independence Act, decided the issue.

Referring to the territories of the new Dominion of India, the Under Secretary of State for India explained in the House of Commons that what were passing to the new India were all those territories, which immediately before the appointed day, with the exception of those that were to be transferred to Pakistan, had been under the sovereignty of His Majesty, and they included not only the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, but also the Laccadive Islands. With regard to Berar, the following explanation was given by him :—

"Section 47 of the Government of India Act, 1935, does, in terms, recognise the sovereignty of the Nizam of Hyderabad, and says 'Whereas certain territory (in the Act referred to as Berar) is under the sovereignty of His Exalted Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad, but is at the date of the passing of this Act, by virtue of certain agreements subsisting between His Majesty and His Exalted Highness, administered together with the Central Provinces.' Following the passage of the 1935 Act, the necessary agreement was entered into with the Nizam in 1936. The effect of Clause 7 (1)(b) of this Bill is to terminate the 1936 Agreement. There can be no doubt that it does remove the legal basis for Berar's administration, as if it were part of British India. In other words, Berar will undoubtedly de jure revert to Hyderabad. That is the legal position. But we have to face the realities of the position. This Province of three or four million inhabitants is administered entirely by officials of the Government of India, and of the Provincial Government of the Central Provinces and Berar, and it would be quite impossible for any change to take place, in a matter of days, involving the taking away of the administrative machine and its replacement by officials of the Nizam. Therefore, it will obviously be necessary for the Government of India to enter into discussions with the Nizam, either to continue the existing arrangements or to replace the present set-up in the light of the legal position". As a result of discussions which took place subsequently between the Governments concerned, s. 47 of the Government of India Act has been adapted as follows by the India (Provisional Constitution) Order :—"Berar shall continue to be governed together with the Central Provinces Government as one Governor's Province under this Act in the same manner as immediately before the establishment of the Dominion".

Section 2 (1), as well as section 2 (2), uses the words "subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4), the territories of India shall be . . ." The territories are then specified. The object of inserting sub-section (3), it is said, was to put beyond any argument that those boundaries can be altered, but they can be altered only with the agreement of the Government of India, or the Government of Pakistan. As to possibilities of secession under the provisions of the Act, the Under Secretary of State for India explained that there was certainly nothing in it which in terms laid down that it was within the power of a Province in the new Dominions to secede. He added 'The question how they work out their own salvation in the future, even on a matter like that, will be entirely one for them, and will depend upon the constitutions which their Constituent Assemblies draw up'.

Section 5 provides for the appointment by the King Governor-General of a Governor-General for each of the new Dominions. The Governor-General is to represent His Majesty for the purposes of the Government of the Dominion. Obviously, the normal Dominion practice could not be adopted for the first appointment of the Governor-General in the Dominions. Although there came into existence two Dominions as from the 15th August 1947, there were no Ministers formally to advise the Crown. Until a Governor-General had been appointed, Prime Ministers could not have taken office. In the present case, therefore, it was agreed with the leaders, and the King's approval was obtained, that the Viceroy should consult the recognised leaders of the main political parties as to whom they would wish to recommend for appointment as Governors.

General of the Dominions. In accordance with the recommendations so made, it was decided to have separate Governors-General for both the Dominions and the persons selected by the representatives of the people were appointed. The essential feature in the Dominions of the British Commonwealth is responsible government. The administration rests with the Ministry under the Governor-General.

Section 6 deals with the powers of the Legislature of each Dominion. As already pointed out,
 Dominion Legislature the Legislature of each Dominion is given full power to make laws having extra-territorial operation (sub-section (1)). This provision is on the same lines as section 3 of the Statute of Westminster, 1931. The aim of the section is to put the new Dominions in the same position as that in the existing Dominions, that is to say, that they should not be fettered by any of those limitations which attach to colonial legislatures. This sub-section, though different in actual form from the corresponding provision in the Statute of Westminster, is designed to bring about the same effect. In answer to a question put to him, whether the Provinces in the New Dominions have the power to make laws having extra-territorial operation, the Attorney-General, at the Committee stage of the Bill in the House of Commons, made the following observation: "It is a question which depends entirely on the ultimate form of the Constitution which is established, by the Constituent Assembly for the various Provinces. I should think they might follow what is the more usual course of not giving extra-territorial powers to the Provinces." When questioned as to the limit of extra-territorial legislation, the Attorney-General pointed out that there was no limit so far as the country which passed the legislation was concerned. The United Kingdom Parliament, for instance, can pass such legislation to any limit which seems proper to it. Whether that legislation will receive any recognition internationally by other countries is an entirely different matter. The general rule in international law should not be lost sight of, namely that countries are not recognised as possessing any powers of extra-territorial legislation except with regard to their own subjects. Sub-sections (2) and (4) provide for the legislative supremacy of the Dominions. Attention may be drawn to the provision contained in sub-section (3). The position of the Governor-General in the Dominions is that he is a deputy of the King. In theory, he is clothed with all the powers of the King. The Governor-General is the repository, together with his Government, of the prerogative of the Crown, in so far as it is necessary for the Government of the Dominion. The right of His Majesty to disallow laws or the right to reserve laws for the pleasure of His Majesty is therefore given up and the Governor General of each Dominion is given full power to assent in His Majesty's name to any law of the Legislature of the Dominion made in its ordinary legislative capacity. Attention may also be directed to sub-section (6). A statement made by the Attorney-General in the House of Commons at the Committee stage of the Bill explains this apparently superfluous provision. He said, "The position is that it will be open to the Legislature to provide for a federal (type?) of constitution under which the powers of the different legislatures are limited, certain subjects being limited to the one and certain subjects to the other. If it did that, it would need to make provision that the powers of the particular provincial Legislature should be limited. That is the object of the sub-section".

The provisions of section 6 may be read in conjunction with the appropriate provisions contained in s 8, to understand clearly the position of the new Dominion Legislature. Sub-sections (1) and (2) of the section establish the sovereign character of the legislature of the Dominion. Sub-sections (4) and (5) reiterate the same position so far as future Acts of Parliament and Orders in Council etc are concerned. Having thus provided for sovereignty to dwell in the future Dominion Legislature in s 6, the Act makes temporary provisions in s 8 for the government of each of the Dominions, and these temporary provisions also comprehend the legislative sphere. Section 8 (1) makes the existing Constituent Assembly the Dominion Legislature for the time being, but only for a specific purpose, namely, that of making provision as to the constitution of the Dominion. Until it makes such provision, according to sub-section (2), each of the new Dominions and all the Provinces and other parts thereof shall be governed as nearly as may be in accordance with the Government of India Act, 1935, subject of course to such omissions, additions, adaptations and modifications.

as may be made by orders of the Governor-General under section 9. The said power of the Governor-General, under s. 9, to adapt or modify the Act, is itself limited to the purposes specified in the section. The proviso to s. 8 (2) further clarifies the general position indicated above. It emphasizes that no control of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom over the affairs of the new Dominions or any Provinces or other parts shall continue on or after 15th August 1947. Para (e) of the proviso may be noted. It lays down that the powers of the previously existing Indian Legislature shall, in the first instance, be exercisable by the Constituent Assembly of the Dominion, in addition to the powers exercisable by that assembly under s. 8 (1). Sub-section (3) of s. 8 then provides for a limit or restriction on the ordinary legislative capacity of the temporary Dominion legislature (i.e. the Constituent Assembly), until other provision is made by the Constituent Assembly acting as Dominion Legislature for constitution-making purposes under s. 8 (1). Such restriction or limitation, it is provided shall have the like effect as a law of the legislature of the Dominion.

Section 18 of the Government of India Act has been adapted accordingly by the India (Provisional Constitution) Order. It now reads as follows — "The powers of the Dominion Legislature under this Act shall, until other provision is made by or in accordance with a law made by the Constituent Assembly under ss. (1) of s. 8 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, be exercisable by that Assembly, and accordingly references in this Act to the Dominion Legislature shall be construed as references to the Constituent Assembly".

Section 7 deals with the consequences of the setting up of the new Dominions. Firstly, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom have, as from 15th August 1947, (no responsibility as respects the government of any of the territories comprised within the two Dominions.) The second consequence is that the suzerainty of His Majesty over the Indian States, more familiarly known as paramountcy, lapses as from that day, and with it all covenants and agreements, all functions exercisable by His Majesty with respect to Indian States, all obligations of His Majesty towards Indian States or their Rulers, and all powers, rights, authority or jurisdiction exercisable by His Majesty in relation to Indian States, by any grant or usage, sufferance or otherwise also lapse. The following statement made by the British Prime Minister at the Bill stage in the House of Commons explains fully the implications of the provisions contained in this section "The House will remember that the Cabinet Mission in their memorandum of 12th May, 1946, informed the States that His Majesty's Government could not, and will not in any circumstances, transfer paramountcy to an Indian Government. With the transfer of power to two Indian Dominions, it is necessary to terminate the paramountcy and suzerainty of the Crown over the Indian States, and, with them, the political engagements concluded under paramountcy and the mutual rights and obligations of the Crown and the States which derive therefrom. The reason for this is that they all depended for their implementation on our part, on the continuance of the responsibility of Great Britain for the Government of India, and with the transfer of power to two Dominion Governments it would be impossible for the British Government to carry out these obligations.) An important element of those rights and obligations concerns the protection of the States against external aggression or internal subversive movement, and, the methods whereby the paramount power has in the past influenced the policy of the States so as to enable it and them to fulfil such undertakings. A feature running through all our relations with the States has been that the Crown has conducted their foreign relations. They have received no international recognition independent of India as a whole. With the ending of the treaties and agreements, the States regain their independence. But they are part of geographical India, and their rulers and peoples are imbued with a patriotism no less great than that of their fellow-Indians in British India. It would, I think, be unfortunate if, owing to the formal severance of their paramountcy relations with the Crown, they were to become islands cut off from the rest of India. The termination of their existing relationship with the Crown need have no such consequence. In fact, already a large number of States have declared their willingness to enter into relationships with the new Dominions and some have been represented in the Constituent Assembly of India. (It is the hope of His Majesty's Government that all States will, in due course, find their appropriate place within one or other of the new Dominions within the British Commonwealth, but until the constitutions of the Dominions have been framed in such a way as to include the States as willing partners, there must necessarily be a less organic form of relationship between them, and there must be a period before a comprehensive system can be worked out. But, quite apart from the political relationship between the States and British India, there have grown up through the years financial and economic relations-relations on such matters as posts and telegraphs, customs and communications-which it would be disastrous to terminate immediately. The proviso in clause 7(1) is designed to secure the continuance of the existing arrangements in this field until there has been time for detailed negotiation between the parties. After the transfer of power, more detailed and binding arrangements will need to be concluded between the Dominions and the States Governments, and it may well be that these arrangements will, in their turn, be superseded by a more organic co-operation between the States and the Dominions. But these later arrangements will, of course, take time to work out, and the transition of the States from the lapse of paramountcy into a free association with the new Dominions is a process which will require proper discussion and deliberation".¹

Explaining the scope of the proviso to section 7(1), the Attorney-General made it clear that it did not contemplate military arrangements of any kind. The words "other like matters" occurring in it have to be construed eiusdem generis in relation to the words coming before, and they contemplate "economic and financial matters". "Civil aviation may be one, roads may be another, but certainly matters of a military nature are not contemplated". With regard to the position of States which acceded to a Dominion which subsequently decided to secede from the British Commonwealth, the Attorney-General observed that it was a matter which depended entirely on the terms on which the State had acceded to the Dominion.

Section 7(1)(c) is related to paragraph 17 of the Statement made by His Majesty's Government on the 3rd June 1947, which said that agreements with tribes of the North-West Frontier of India would have to be negotiated by the appropriate successor authority. The effect of the provision is to leave it open to the new Dominions to initiate negotiations for fresh agreement with the

Jirgas, or tribal assemblies, who are the treaty-making bodies empowered to enter into agreements on behalf of the tribes. These tribal areas were not part of British India. They were not administered by officers of the Government of India. Relations with them were governed in the past by a series of treaties and agreements which conferred jurisdiction in certain matters on the Crown. The termination of these agreements placed the tribes and the appropriate successor Government in a position of freedom to negotiate fresh agreements.

Section 7 (2) deals with the omission from the Royal Style and Titles of the words "India Imperator" and the words "Emperor of India". A change in the Royal Style and Titles is not a matter for the United Kingdom alone. As the Preamble to the Statute of Westminster makes clear, it concerns the other members of the British Commonwealth as well. For practical reasons, it has not been possible for such Parliamentary action as may be necessary to be taken in those other countries simultaneously. But the British Prime Minister informed his Parliament that as a result of consultation with the Prime Ministers concerned, he was authorised to state that the other Commonwealth Governments agreed to the proposed change in the Royal Style and Title and were prepared to take such steps as they considered necessary to obtain the consent of their Parliaments.

Another consequence of the setting up of the new Dominions is the disappearance of the India office in London. The British Prime Minister explained the position to the House of Commons as follows: "With the termination of all British control over the Indian sub-continent, the historic office of the Secretary of State for India will come to an end. The conduct of relations with India will fall within the sphere of the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations. For a transitional period there will, no doubt, be in relation to India and Pakistan a considerable volume of work, much of it of a winding-up character, which would not ordinarily fall within the range of the functions of the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Affairs. This will add considerably to his responsibilities, and in order to assist in this work, I am proposing to appoint a Minister of State for Commonwealth Relations. This will be one of the posts allowed under Section 2 of the Re-election of Ministers Act, 1919, as amended by the House of Commons Disqualification Declaration of Law) Act, 1935, commonly called that of "Minister without Portfolio". There will, consequently, be no need for legislation¹.

As already stated, Section 8 makes temporary provision as to the government of each of the new Dominions. The Constituent Assembly in each Dominion is to exercise the power of legislation. Consequent on the decision to transfer power as from the 15th August 1947, it became necessary to provide for legislatures in the new Dominions as from the same date. Provisional Govt and these legislatures besides having general legislative powers must also have constituent powers, that is to say, they must be legislative bodies set up for the dual purpose of performing the ordinary functions of a parliament and of making constitutions. A solution had to be found to the problem of getting a parliament to work in the two Dominions where there were no constitutions actually in being and at the same time providing for the framing of the new constitutions. The solution which was found was one of adapting the existing Government of India Act to suit the new conditions as the basic constitution for the two new Dominions and giving the Constituent Assemblies the status of parliaments. The Government of India Act, 1935, as adapted, is to be the basic constitution on the first instance, until legislation is undertaken by the Constituent Assembly of each Dominion. The following statement made by the British Prime Minister at the Bill stage explains the whole position. "The Act of 1935 provided for a Central Legislature and Provincial Legislatures and for the division of powers between them. It is an immensely long and detailed Act, which, as some of us remember, took months of work in the framing, and in the preliminary consultations, and in passing through this House. It was designed for a united India. It now has to be adapted for the service of two Dominions. It contained many limitations on the powers of the Legislature, and gave, among other things, extensive powers to the Governor-General and to the Provincial Governors to act in their own discretion. The proviso in Clause 8 in effect sweeps away all these special powers and is intended to place the Governor-General and the Provincial Governors in the position of Dominion Governor-General, that is to say, they act only on the advice of their Ministers. Clause 3 protects the existing position as between the Centre and the Provinces until other provision is made by a law passed by the Legislature. It will be realised that the intention is that when the new Dominion begins to function there should be in existence a body of law which can be amended by the Constituent Assemblies and subsequently by any legislatures that may be formed to take their place. I said that the Act of 1935 will be, in the first instance, until other action is taken, the basis of the new constitution, with necessary adaptations. Clause 9 sets out the machinery of adaptation. This is to be done by Order of the Governor-General. If Hon. Members will refer to Clause 19, the definition Clause, they will see that up to the appointed day, 15th August, the powers are exercisable by the Governor-General within the meaning of the Act of 1935, that is to say, by Lord Mountbatten, but after that date, where the Order or Act affects only one Dominion by the Governor-General of that Dominion, where it concerns both Dominions, by the two Governors General acting jointly. I must admit that the powers given here are very wide. That is inevitable in the nature of the case. The Governor-General has to bring the Act into operation. He has to effect a division between the two Dominions, dividing the powers, rights, assets, property, liabilities, et cetera. I should like to mention here that the Indian leaders have agreed in principle in the setting up of an arbitral tribunal*, to which should be referred any questions regarding the division of assets and liabilities on which the two Governments cannot reach agreement. But, besides these duties, the Governor-General has to make the adaptations required in the Government of India Act, 1935, in order to make it the new constitution for the time being. He has in particular the task of arranging during the transition period for the carrying out of services which are vital to the interests of both the new Dominions. The House will realise how great is the problem of dealing with such matters as railway and other communications, the reserve bank, the monetary and fiscal systems, and, of course, defence, to mention only the most obvious examples of those services which have hitherto been operated in the interests of the whole of India. Clearly, it must take time before the separate systems can be set up, and for definite agreements to be made between the two Dominions Provision must be made by some method—it may be by joint delegations from the two Dominions—for carrying out all these various activities during the transition period, and it is for this reason that such wide powers are given to the Governor-General. It would, of course, have simplified matters if the same person had held the position of Governor-General in both Dominions, but it has been decided otherwise. It is clear it can only be worked effectively by agreement between the two Governors-General. These powers of the Governors-General will come to an end on 31st March next, unless terminated earlier by the Dominion Legislatures. There is a similar, though rather smaller problem involved in the division of the Punjab, Bengal and possibly Assam. Accordingly, these powers are also given to the Governors of those Provinces, but only up to 15th August. I call attention to sub section (3) That gives retrospective effect as from 3rd June in order to cover action by the Governor-General and the Governors taken in anticipation of legislation. The House will realise that much has to be done in preparation which is not strictly within the 1935 Act. An important Order made by the Governor-General before the "appointed day" was the Executive Council (Transitional Provisions) Order, 1947.¹

Section 8 has to be read in relation to section 9 and section 18. The effect of this section on the Government of India Act 1935, is thus explained by the Attorney-General. "In substance the existing powers and constitution of the Provincial Legislatures will remain in being, and so may the powers, as distinct from the constitution, of the Central Legislature. What I have in mind particularly, therefore, is that what are called the "legislative lists" set out in Schedule Seven of the 1935 Act, which allocate certain subjects as being for the Central Legislature and assigning others to the Provincial ones, should continue until one or other of the Constituent Assemblies decides to alter them. So should also the provision with regard to the constitution and jurisdiction of the High Courts. This will go on and the Courts will continue to function until a Constituent Assembly or Legislature decides to alter them. Some of the modifications and adaptations of the 1935 Act are obvious and some are not. The more obvious ones are the subject of express provision in sub section (2) of the clause, and, for the rest, the necessary modifications will be made by Order of the Governor General under the powers which are vested in the Governor-General under the subsequent Clauses of the Bill"

Section 9 sets out, accordingly, the machinery for adaptation of the existing law. It provides that the Governor-General shall by Order make such provision as appears to him to be necessary or expedient for the purposes indicated. It is in pursuance of this provision that the Governor-General has made a number of Orders (see Part III of the Book). Among the more important of them are the Provisional Constitution Order and the Provisional Constitution (Amendment) Orders, which have adapted the Government of India Act, 1935, to suit the new conditions which now exist. Extensive alterations and modifications have been effected in that Act. The Act as adapted is reproduced in Part II. More than a third of the original Act has been omitted, and among the Schedules to the Act, the fifth, second, eighth and ninth Schedules have been dropped. Among the provisions which have disappeared, mention may be made of those relating to reserved subjects in the Centre, special responsibilities of the Governor General and the Governors, superintendence of the Secretary of State, commercial discrimination, the power of the Crown to disallow Acts of Legislature, restrictions on legislative powers, Crown relations with States, Federal Railway Authority, Defence Services, Secretary of State's Services, the Secretary of State and his Advisers and the provisions in case of breakdown of the normal constitutional machinery.

Section 10 deals with the position of the services. The following statement of the Prime Minister made in the House of Commons explains the need for, and the scope of, the provision made in the Act—“The House will recall that in the White Paper published last April His Majesty's Government made plain their position with regard to the Services, and all pledges then given by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom stand. It was then stated that the Government of India accepted liability for pension earned by service under the Secretary of State, whether by civilians or by members of the Defence Services. Clause 10, which has been inserted at the express request of the leaders of the Indian parties, provides for maintenance of the existing conditions of service, as well as compensatory rights, in the case of those members of the Secretary of State's Services who continue to serve the Governments of the new Dominions. As regards persons who have been in Government service, whether Central or Provincial, but whose service has not been specifically under the Secretary of State, I am happy to be able to announce now that the leaders of the Indian parties have guaranteed the existing terms and conditions of service to all their employees, including Europeans. This guarantee covers pensionary and provident fund liabilities and excludes any question of discrimination between Indian and non-Indian. But it cannot of course be regarded as an abandonment of the general right of any Government to revise the salaries of their servants from time to time"

Sections 11, 12 and 13 are of a technical nature. They make provision in regard to the Indian armed forces, the British forces in India, and the naval forces. The rest of the Act is devoted to incidental provisions of a general character. Explaining these provisions in the House of Commons, the Prime Minister stated as follows —

"There are some important matters which I should like to explain. Firstly, with regard to the partition of the Armed Forces. For the purpose of dealing with the question of partition there has been, since 7th June, a Partition Committee of the Interim Government consisting of two representatives of each of the two parties, with the Viceroy as the chairman, and a number of expert committees have been set up to work under this Partition Committee. This Committee's function was to examine the steps to be taken to set up machinery for carrying out the partition. It was really a fact-finding body, with the duty of making proposals and not of reaching final decisions. It was also decided that as soon as any one Province had declared in favour of joining a new and separate Constituent Assembly the Partition Committee should be replaced by a Partition Council. That Council should consist of two of the top-rank leaders of Congress and two of the Muslim League, with the Viceroy as chairman. This Council was set up on 27th June, and it was announced on 1st July that the Partition Council had reached agreement on the general principles to govern the reconstruction of the Armed Forces The House will have seen that announcement and a very important agreement was arrived at Until the division of the Forces is completed, and the two Dominion Governments are in a position to administer them, all existing Armed Forces in India will remain under the administrative control of the present Commander-in-Chief, who will, in turn, be under the Joint Defence Council, consisting of the Governor General or Governors-General, the two Defence Ministers, and the Commander-in-Chief himself There was a question about the two Governors-General, the original contemplation being one person holding both positions It has been agreed that Lord Mountbatten should be the chairman of this Council The Commander-in-Chief will have no responsibility for law and order, no operational control of any units, except during transit from one Dominion to another, nor any power to move troops within the borders of either Dominion With regard to the British Forces in India at the transfer of power on 15th August, the British Armed Forces will immediately start to be withdrawn from India This withdrawal will be carried out as rapidly as shipping permits, and is expected to be completed by about the end of this year Clause 12 (1) declares that the British Army, the British Air Force and the Royal Navy when in Indian waters are under the direction and control of the United Kingdom Government and Service authorities This, of course, is consistent with the Dominion status of India and Pakistan Clause 12 (3) provides for the civil and military authorities continuing to offer the same facilities as heretofore for the British Army, pending their evacuation, and requires the Governor General, by his orders to facilitate their evacuation I should say that the phrase "and in the other territories" refers to the tribal areas and the States, and is intended to ensure that the Indian civil and military authorities extend to the British Forces whatever facilities they may secure for their own Forces in such territories I will here refer to the Third Schedule, which sets out the modifications of the Army Act which have to be made for the British Army so long as it remains in India The general principle of the modifications is to remove all powers of interference by the Governor-General and other civilian authorities in India with the internal affairs of the British Army in India, while preserving their powers and duties so far as they do not amount to interference of this kind Clause 14 again is technical It is essentially a transitional clause dealing with the position of the Secretary of State and the Auditor of Indian Home Accounts I will only note that under sub-section (3) the advisers of the Secretary of State provided for under the 1935 Act will now cease to function Clause 15 is, I think, self explanatory Clause 16 confirms the separation of Aden from India, which was effected by Section 288 of the Government of India Act, 1935 I do not think the position with regard to divorce or as to existing laws requires any detailed explanation (sections 17 and 18)"

Section 18 deals with various legal matters of a consequential nature It is self explanatory Attention may only be drawn to sub section (4) It provides that the existing Instruments of Instruction to Governors and Governor General lapse, and the power under the 1935 Act, under which those Instruments were issued, comes to an end It would be improper for any Instruments of Instructions to be issued to the Governors and Governors-General in future, because they will be acting in all matters on the advice of their Ministers, and will have no responsibility to the Government in the United Kingdom

The Dominion Constitution has come into operation from the 15th August 1947 The Government of India Act, 1935¹ has consequently been amended by the India (Provisional Constitution) Order, 1947 Section 2 of the Act, which provided for the government of India by the Crown, has been omitted Section 3 provides for a Governor-General to be appointed by His Majesty by a Commission under the Royal Sign Manual Section 5 provides for the establishment of the Dominion as from the 15th August 1947, which will be a Union comprising the Governor's Provinces, the Chief Commissioners' Provinces, the Acceding Indian States and any other areas that may, with the consent of the Dominion, be included in it The previously existing definitions of "Indian State" and "Ruler" in the Act have now been omitted (s 311) The omission is not without significance Any territory may hereafter be recognised by the Dominion Government as a State for purposes of accession to the Union The territorial limits of the Dominion of India are defined by the Independence Act itself (s 2, 3 and 4) Section 6 provides for the accession of Indian States An Indian State shall be deemed to have acceded to the Dominion

if the Governor-General has signified his acceptance of an Instrument of Accession executed by the ruler thereof Provision is also made for supplementary Instruments of Accession to be executed by the rulers and accepted by the Governor-General It will be noticed that the Independence Act itself makes no provision for the accession of Indian States to the Union Having stated that paramountcy lapses from the 15th August 1947, and with it all treaties, agreements, obligations, etc., it leaves the matter there As pointed out by the Viceroy in his speech on the 3rd June 1947, the position of States after the 15th August is a matter to be determined by negotiation and agreement between the Dominion Government on the one hand and the Rulers of the States on the other The British Cabinet Delegation's statement regarding the States stands, and in accordance with its terms the Princes have generally agreed to accede to the Union on the three subjects specified therein, namely, defence, foreign affairs and communications The position was made clear in a statement made by the Hon'ble the Home Member early in July last He said "The States have already accepted the basic principle that for defence, foreign affairs and communications they would come into an Indian union We ask no more of them than accession on these three subjects in which the common interests of the country are involved In other matters, we would scrupulously respect their autonomous existence" Section 6 of the Act also provides that as soon as may be after any instrument of accession or supplementary instrument has been accepted by the Governor General, copies of the Instrument and the Governor General's acceptance thereof shall be laid before the Dominion Legislature and all courts shall take judicial notice of every such instrument and acceptance

In the executive sphere important changes have already been made The first noteworthy change is that in the position of the Governor General He has now become a constitutional head and acts only on the advice of the Ministry Section 9 of the Act provides for a Council of Ministers to aid and advise the Governor-General in the exercise of all his functions What was formerly known as the Executive Council of the Governor-General has now become the Cabinet consisting of 16 Ministers, and the old Departments of the Central Government are now renamed as Ministries The Cabinet is a homogeneous body of Ministers, collectively responsible for all governmental action. Sections 11 to 15 of the Act, relating to "reserved" subjects, special responsibilities of the Governor-General, instruments of instructions, superintendence of Secretary of State, and Financial Adviser to the Governor-General have been omitted.

Coming to the legislative sphere, the Constituent Legislature has become the Dominion Legislature, and it has two spheres of action, one constitution-making and the other legislation-making. There is a vast amount of legislative work awaiting it. The old Houses of Legislature, Legislative Assembly and Council of State, have become extinct. The restrictions which formerly existed on the powers of the legislature have been removed. The legislative powers of the Governor-General have also been removed, and power is conferred on him to promulgate Ordinances only in cases of emergency (new s.42). Section 45 of the Act, which provided for a breakdown of the constitutional machinery, has been omitted by the India (Provisional Constitution) Order, 1947.

So far as the central judiciary is concerned (s.200 to 218), no changes of substance have been made in regard to the position of the Federal Court, its powers, authority, and jurisdiction. The Federal Court Order, 1947, an Order made by the Governor-General, has kept alive the previously existing body. The Court remains, mainly a constitutional court and the right of appeal to the Privy Council from its decisions is retained (s.203). The old three-fold jurisdiction of the Court, namely, original, appellate and advisory, continues as before. Power is given to the Dominion Legislature to enlarge its civil appellate jurisdiction. If the Court's jurisdiction is so enlarged, the Dominion Legislature may provide by Act for the abolition in whole or in part of direct appeals in civil cases from High Courts to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave (s.206). Geographically, there has of necessity come about a curtailment of the jurisdiction of the Court, consequent on the division of the country into two Dominions and the decision to set up a separate Court for Pakistan, but the accession of the States to the Union of India may tend to increase its jurisdiction and add to its importance. It is for the Dominion Legislature to decide as to what the future set up of the central judiciary will be

In the Provinces, consequential changes have taken place. The governmental set up is on the same lines as in the Union, namely, a constitutional Governor as the head, Ministers to aid and advise him in all his functions, joint responsibility of the Ministry as a whole to the ~~Legislature~~, homogeneity of the Cabinet, ~~Legislature~~, supremacy of the Legislature within the field marked out for it, and the judiciary, at the head of which is the High Court, functioning within its own sphere. The provisions relating to the special responsibilities of the Governor have been omitted, the previously existing provision for a breakdown of the constitution (s 93) has been omitted, and the legislative powers of the Governor have disappeared. He is however given the power to make Ordinances when the Legislature is not in session. The distribution of legislative powers between the Provinces and the Union remains the same as before.

The Chief Commissioners' Provinces comprised in the Union are Delhi, Aimer-Merwara, Coorg, Andaman and Nicobar Islands, the area known as Panth Piploda and such other Chief Commissioner's Provinces as may be created under the Act. A Chief Commissioner's Province is to be administered by the Governor-General acting, to such extent as he thinks fit, through a Chief Commissioner appointed by him.

The present Constitution is, by its very nature, a provisional one. A new and permanent Constitution will be established sooner or later, and, to that end the Constituent Assembly in its capacity as a Constitution-making body has been at work from December 1946. That Constitution is still in the making. It is not our purpose to deal with it here.

REPORT OF THE BENGAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION *

To

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

1- I have the honour to present the decision and award of the Bengal Boundary Commission, which, by virtue of section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, is represented by my decision as Chairman of that Commission. This award relates to the division of the Province of Bengal and the Commission's award in respect of the District of Sylhet and areas adjoining thereto will be recorded in a separate report.

2 The Bengal Boundary Commission was constituted by the announcement of the Governor-General, dated the 30th of June, 1947, Reference No D50/7/47-R. The members of the Commission thereby appointed were—

Mr Justice Bijan Kumar Mukherjea, *

Mr Justice C C Biswas,

Mr Justice Abu Saleb Mohamed Akram, and

Mr Justice S A Rahman

I was subsequently appointed Chairman of this Commission.

3 The terms of reference of the Commission as set out in the announcement, were as follows —

"The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of Bengal on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. In doing so, it will also take into account other factors."

We were desired to arrive at a decision as soon as possible before the 15th of August.

* Gazette of India Extraordinary dated August 17th, 1947—Legislative Department Notification No F 68/47-R

"After preliminary meetings, the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by interested parties. A very large number of memoranda and representations was received.

5. The public sittings of the Commission took place at Calcutta, and extended from Wednesday the 16th of July 1947, to Thursday the 24th of July 1947, inclusive, with the exception of Sunday, the 20th of July. Arguments were presented to the Commission by numerous parties on both sides, but the main cases were presented by counsel on behalf of the Indian National Congress, the Bengal Provincial Hindu Mahasabha and the New Bengal Association on the one hand, and on behalf of the Muslim League on the other. In view of the fact that I was acting also as Chairman of the Punjab Boundary Commission, whose proceedings were taking place simultaneously with the proceedings of the Bengal Boundary Commission, I did not attend the public sittings in person, but made arrangements to study daily the record of the proceedings and all material submitted for our consideration.

6. After the close of the public sittings the remainder of the time of the Commission was devoted to clarification and discussion of the issues involved. Our discussions took place at Calcutta.

7. The question of drawing a satisfactory boundary line under our terms of reference between East and West Bengal was one to which the parties concerned propounded the most diverse solutions. The province offers few, if any, satisfactory natural boundaries, and, its development has been on lines that do not well accord with a division by contiguous majority areas of Muslim and non-Muslim majorities.

8. In my view, the demarcation of a boundary line between East and West Bengal depended on the answers to be given to certain basic questions which may be stated as follows —

(1) To which State was the City of Calcutta to be assigned, or was it possible to adopt any method of dividing the City between the two States?

(2) If the City of Calcutta must be assigned as a whole to one or other of the States, what were its indispensable claims to the control of territory, such as all or part of the Nadia River system or the Kulti rivers, upon which the life of Calcutta as a city and port depended?

(3) Could the attractions of the Ganges-Padma-Madhumati river line displace the strong claims of the heavy concentration of Muslim majorities in the districts of Jessore and Nadia without doing too great a violence to the principle of our terms of reference ?

(4) Could the district of Khulna usefully be held by State different from that which held the district of Jessore ?

(5) Was it right to assign to Eastern Bengal the considerable block of non-Muslim majorities in the districts of Malda and Dinajpur ?

(6) Which State's claim ought to prevail in respect of the Districts of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri, in which the Muslim population amounted to 242 per cent of the whole in the case of Darjeeling, and to 23.08 per cent of the whole in the case of Jalpaiguri, but which constituted an area not in any natural sense contiguous to another non-Muslim area of Bengal ?

(7) To which State should the Chittagong Hill Tracts be assigned, an area in which the Muslim population was only 3 per cent of the whole, but which it was difficult to assign to a State different from that which controlled the district of Chittagong itself ?

9 After a much discussion, my colleagues found that they were unable to arrive at an agreed view on any of these major issues. There were of course considerable areas of the Province in the south-west and north-east and east, which provoked no controversy on either side - but, in the absence of any reconciliation on all main questions affecting the drawing of the boundary itself, my colleagues assented to the view at the close of discussion that I had no alternative but to proceed to give my own decision

10 This I now proceed to do but I should like at the same time to express my gratitude to my colleagues for their indispensable assistance in clarifying and discussing the difficult questions involved. The demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this award, and in the map* attached thereto, Annexure B. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration, and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail

* not printed

11 I have done what I can in drawing the line to eliminate any avoidable cutting of railway communications and of river systems, which are of importance to the life of the province but it is quite impossible to draw a boundary under our terms of reference without causing some interruption of this sort, and I can only express the hope that arrangements can be made and maintained between the two States that will minimize the consequences of this interruption as far as possible

(SYLHET DISTRICT)

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

1 I have the honour to present the report of the Bengal Boundary Commission relating to Sylhet District and the adjoining districts of Assam. By virtue of Section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the decisions contained in this report become the decision and award of the Commission

2 The Bengal Boundary Commission was constituted as stated in my report dated the 12th of August 1947 with regard to the division of the Province of Bengal into East and West Bengal. Our terms of reference were as follows —

"The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of Bengal on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. In doing so, it will also take into account other factors

In the event of the referendum in the District of Sylhet resulting in favour of amalgamation with Eastern Bengal, the Boundary Commission will also demarcate the Muslim majority areas of Sylhet District and the contiguous Muslim majority areas of the adjoining districts of Assam "

3 After the conclusion of the proceedings relating to Bengal the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by parties interested in the Sylhet question. A number of such memoranda and representations was received

4 The Commission held open sittings at Calcutta on the 4th, 5th, and 6th days of August 1947, for the purpose of hearing arguments. The main arguments were conducted on the one side by counsel on behalf of the Government of East Bengal and the Provincial and District Muslim Leagues, and on the other side, by counsel on behalf of the Government of the Province of Assam and the Assam Provincial Congress Committee and the Assam Provincial Hindu Mahasabha. I was not present in person at the open sittings as I was at the time engaged in the proceedings of the Punjab Boundary Commission which were taking place simultaneously, but I was supplied with the daily record of the Sylhet proceedings and with all material submitted for the Commission's consideration. At the close of the open sittings, the members of the Commission entered into discussions with me as to the issues involved and the decisions to be come to. These discussions took place at New Delhi.

5 There was an initial difference of opinion as to the scope of the reference entrusted to the Commission. Two of my colleagues took the view that the Commission had been given authority to detach from Assam and to attach to East Bengal any Muslim majority areas of any part of Assam that could be described as contiguous to East Bengal, since they construed the words "the adjoining districts of Assam" as meaning any districts of Assam that adjoined East Bengal. The other two of my colleagues took the view that the Commission's power of detaching areas from Assam and transferring them to East Bengal was limited to the District of Sylhet and contiguous Muslim majority areas (if any) of other districts of Assam that adjoined Sylhet. The difference of opinion was referred to me for my casting vote, and I took the view that the more limited construction of our terms of reference was the correct one and that the "adjoining districts of Assam" did not extend to other districts of Assam than those that adjoined Sylhet. The Commission accordingly proceeded with its work on this basis.

6 It was argued before the Commission on behalf of the Government of East Bengal that on the true construction of our terms of reference and section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the whole of the District of Sylhet at least must be transferred to East Bengal and the Commission had no option but to act upon this assumption. All my colleagues agreed in rejecting this argument, and I concur in their view.

7 We found some difficulty in making up our minds whether, under our terms of reference, we were to approach the Sylhet question in the same way as the question of partitioning Bengal, since there were some differences in the language employed. But all my colleagues came to the conclusion that we were intended to divide the Sylhet and adjoining districts of

Report of Bengal Boundary Commission (Sylhet District) 33

Assam between East Bengal and the Province of Assam on the basis of contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims, but taking into account other factors, I am glad to adopt this view.

8 The members of the Commission were however unable to arrive at an agreed view as to how the boundary lines should be drawn, and after discussion of their differences, they invited me to give my decision. This I now proceed to do.

9 In my view, the question is limited to the districts of Sylhet and Cachar, since of the other districts of Assam that can be said to adjoin Sylhet neither the Garo Hills nor the Khasi and Jaintia Hills nor the Lushai Hills have anything approaching a Muslim majority of population in respect of which a claim could be made.

10 Out of 35 thanas in Sylhet, 8 have non-Muslim majorities, but of these eight, two—Sulla and Ajmiriganj (which is in any event divided almost evenly between Muslims and non-Muslims), are entirely surrounded by preponderantly Muslim areas, and must therefore go with them to East Bengal. The other six thanas comprising a population of over 530,000 people stretch in a continuous line along part of the southern border of Sylhet District. They are divided between two sub-divisions, of which one, South Sylhet, comprising a population of over 515,000 people, has in fact a non-Muslim majority of some 40,000, while the other, Karimganj, with a population of over 568,000 people has a Muslim majority that is a little larger.

11 With regard to the District of Cachar, one thana, Hailakandi, has a Muslim majority and is contiguous to the Muslim thanas of Badarpur and Karimganj in the District of Sylhet. This thana forms, with the thana of Katlichara immediately to its south, the sub-division of Hailakandi, and in the sub-division as a whole Muslims enjoy a very small majority being 51 per cent of the total population. I think that the dependence of Katlichara on Hailakandi for normal communications makes it important that the area should be under one jurisdiction, and that the Muslims would have at any rate a strong presumptive claim for the transfer of the sub-division of Hailakandi, comprising a population of 166,536, from the Province of Assam to the Province of East Bengal.

12 But a study of the map shows, in my judgment, that a division on these lines would present problems of administration that might gravely affect the future welfare and happiness of the whole District. Not only would the six non-Muslim thanas of Sylhet be completely divorced from the rest of Assam if the Muslim claim to Hailakandi were recognised, but they form a strip running east and west whereas the natural division of the land is north and south and they effect an awkward severance of the railway line through Sylhet, so that, for instance, the junction for the town of Sylhet itself, the capital of the district, would lie in Assam, not in East Bengal.

13 In those circumstances I think that some exchange of territories must be effected if a workable division is to result. Some of the non-Muslim thanas must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory and Hailakandi must be retained by Assam. Accordingly I decide and award as follows —

A line shall be drawn from the point where the boundary between the Thanas of Patharkandi and Kulaura meets the frontier of Tripura State and shall run north along the boundary between those Thanas, then along the boundary between the Thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha, then along the boundary between the Thanas of Karimganj and Barlekha, and then along the boundary between the Thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar to the point where that boundary meets the River Kusiyara. The line shall then turn to the east taking the River Kusiyara as the boundary and run to the point where that river meets the boundary between the Districts of Sylhet and Cachar. The centre line of the main stream or channel shall constitute the boundary. So much of the District of Sylhet as lies to the west and north of this line shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal. No other part of the Province of Assam shall be transferred.

14 For purposes of illustration a map* marked A is attached on which the line is delineated. In the event of any divergence between the line as delineated on the map and as described in paragraph 13, the written description is to prevail.

REPORT OF THE PUNJAB BOUNDARY COMMISSION

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

I have the honour to present the decision and award of the Punjab Boundary Commission which, by virtue of section 4 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, is represented by my decision as Chairman of that Commission.

* Not Printed

2. The Punjab Boundary Commission was constituted by the announcement of the Governor-General dated the 30th of June 1947, Reference No. D50/7/47R. The members of the Commission thereby appointed were—

Mr Justice Din Muhammad,
Mr Justice Muhammad Munir,
Mr Justice Mehr Chand Mahajan, and Mr Justice Teja Singh

I was subsequently appointed Chairman of this Commission.

3. The terms of reference of the Commission, as set out in the announcement, were as follows —

"The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of the Punjab on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. In doing so, it will also take into account other factors."

We were desired to arrive at a decision as soon as possible before the 15th of August.

4. After preliminary meetings, the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by interested parties. Numerous memoranda and representations were received.

5. The public sittings of the Commission took place at Lahore, and extended from Monday the 21st of July 1947, to Thursday the 25th of July 1947, inclusive, with the exception of Sunday, the 27th of July. The main arguments were conducted by counsel on behalf of the Indian National Congress, the Muslim League, and the Sikh members of the Punjab Legislative Assembly but a number of other interested parties appeared and argued before the Commission. In view of the fact that I was acting also as Chairman of the Bengal Boundary Commission, whose proceedings were taking place simultaneously with the proceedings of the Punjab Boundary Commission, I did not attend the public sittings in person, but made arrangements to study daily the record of the proceedings and of all material submitted for our consideration.

6. After the close of the public sittings, the Commission adjourned to Simla where I joined my colleagues, and we entered upon discussions in the hope of being able to present an agreed decision as to the demarcation of the boundaries I am greatly indebted to my colleagues for indispensable assistance in the clarification of the issues and the marshalling of the arguments for different views, but it became evident in the course of our discussions that the divergence of opinion between my colleagues was so wide that an agreed solution of the boundary problem was not to be obtained. I do not intend to convey by this that there were not large areas of the Punjab on the west and on the east respectively which provoked no controversy as to which State they should be assigned to, but when it came to the extensive but disputed areas in which the boundary must be drawn, differences of opinion as to the significance of the term "other factors", which we were directed by our terms of reference to take into account, and as to the weight and value to be attached to those factors, made it impossible to arrive at any agreed line. In those circumstances my colleagues, at the close of our discussions, assented to the conclusion that I must proceed to give my own decision.

7. This I now proceed to do. The demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this award, and in the map* attached thereto, Annexure B. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration, and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail.

8. Certain representations were addressed to the Commission on behalf of the States of Bikaner and Bahawalpur, both of which States were interested in canals whose headworks were situate in the Punjab Province. I have taken the view that an interest of this sort can not weigh directly in the question before us as to the division of the Punjab between the Indian Union and Pakistan since the territorial division of the province does not affect rights of private property, and I think that I am entitled to assume with confidence that any agreements that either of those States has made with the Provincial Government as to the sharing of water from these canals or otherwise will be respected by whatever Government hereafter assumes jurisdiction over the headworks concerned. I wish also to make it plain that no decision that is made by this Commission is intended to affect whatever territorial claim the State of Bahawalpur may have in respect of a number of villages lying between Sulemanke Weir and Gurka Ferry.

9. The task of delimiting a boundary in the Punjab is a difficult one. The claims of the respective parties ranged over a wide field of territory, but in my judgment the truly debatable ground in the end proved to lie in and around the area between the Beas and Sutlej rivers on the one hand, and the river Ravi on the other. The fixing of a boundary in this area was further complicated by the existence of canal systems, so vital to the life of the Punjab but developed only under the conception of a single administration, and of systems of road and rail communication, which have been planned in the same way. There was also the stubborn geographical fact of the respective situation of Lahore and Amritsar, and the claims to each or both of those cities which each side vigorously maintained. After weighing to the best of my ability such other factors as appeared to me relevant as affecting the fundamental basis of contiguous majority areas, I have come to the decision set out in the Schedule which thus becomes the award of the Commission. I am conscious that there are legitimate criticisms to be made of it, as there are, I think, of any other line that might be chosen.

10 I have hesitated long over those not inconsiderable areas east of the Sutlej River and in the angle of the Beas and Sutlej Rivers in which Muslim majorities are found. But on the whole I have come to the conclusion that it would be in the true interests of neither State to extend the territories of the West Punjab to a strip on the far side of the Sutlej and that there are factors such as the disruption of railway communications and water systems that ought in this instance to displace the primary claims of contiguous majorities. But I must call attention to the fact that the Dipalpur Canal, which serves areas in the West Punjab, takes off from the Ferozepore head-works and I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these headworks.

11 I have not found it possible to preserve undivided the irrigation system of the Upper Bar Doab Canal, which extends from Madhopur in the Pathankot Tahsil to the western border of the district of Lahore, although I have made small adjustments of the Lahore-Amritsar district boundary to mitigate some of the consequences of this severance, nor can I see any means of preserving under one territorial jurisdiction the Mandi Hydro-electric Scheme which supplies power in the districts of Kangra, Gurdaspur, Amritsar, Lahore, Jullundur, Ludhiana, Ferozepore, Sheikhupura, and Lyallpur. I think it only right to express the hope that, where the drawing of a boundary line cannot avoid disrupting such unitary services as canal irrigation, railways, and electric power transmission, a solution may be found by agreement between the two States for some joint control of what has hitherto been a valuable common service

12 I am conscious too that the award cannot go far towards satisfying sentiments and aspirations deeply held on either side but directly in conflict as to their bearing on the placing of the boundary. If means are to be found to gratify to the full those sentiments and aspirations, I think that they must be found in political arrangements with which I am not concerned, and not in the decision of a boundary line drawn under the terms of reference of this Commission

CYRIL RADCLIFFE

NEW DELHI,
The 12th August 1947.

THE SCHEDULE

ANNEXURE A

1 The boundary between the East and West Punjab shall commence on the north at the point where the west branch of the Ujh river enters the Punjab Province from the State of Kashmir. The boundary shall follow the line of that river down the western boundary of the Pathankot Tahsil to the point where the Pathankot Shakargarh and Gurdaspur tahsils meet. The tahsil boundary and not the actual course of the Ujh river shall constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab.

2 From the point of meeting of the three tahsils above mentioned, the boundary between the East and West Punjab shall follow the line of the Ujh river to its junction with the river Ravi and thereafter the line of the river Ravi along the boundary between the tahsils of Gurdaspur and Shakargarh, the boundary between the tahsils of Batala and Shakargarh, the boundary between the tahsils of Batala and Narowal, the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Narowal, and the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Shadara, to the point on the river Ravi where the district of Amritsar is divided from the district of Lahore. The tahsil boundaries referred to, and not the actual course of the river Ujh or the river Ravi, shall constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab.

3 From the point on the river Ravi where the district of Amritsar is divided from the district of Lahore the boundary between the East and West Punjab shall turn southwards following the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Lahore and then the tahsils of Tarn Taran and Lahore to the point where the tahsils of Kasur, Lahore and Tarn Taran meet. The line will then turn south-westward along the boundary between the tahsils of Lahore and Kasur to the point where that boundary meets the north-east corner of village Theh Jharolian. It will then run along the eastern boundary of that village to its junction with village Chatthianwala, turn along the northern boundary of that village, and then run down its eastern boundary to its junction with village Waigal. It will then run along the eastern boundary of village Waigal to its junction with village Kalia, and then along the southern boundary of village Waigal to its junction with village Panhuwan. The line will then run down the eastern boundary of village Panhuwan to its junction with village Gaddoke. The line will then run down the eastern border of village Gaddoke to its junction with village Nurwala. It will then turn along the southern boundary of village Gaddoke to its junction with village Katluni Kalan. The line will then run down the eastern boundary of village Katluni Kalan to its junction with villages Kals and Mastgarh. It will then run along the southern boundary of village Katluni Kalan to the north-west corner of village Kals. It will then run along the western boundary of village Kals to its junction with village Khem Karan. The line will then run along the western and southern boundaries of village Khem Karan to its junction with village Maewala. It will then run down the western and southern boundaries of village Maewala, proceeding eastward along the boundaries between village Mahaidepur on the north and villages Sherkhupura Kuhna, Kamalpuran, Fatehwala and Mawewala. The line will then turn northward along the western boundary of village Sahjra to its junction with villages Mahaidepur and Machhik. It will then turn north-eastward along the boundaries between villages Machhik and Sahjra and then proceed along the boundary between villages Rattoke Sahjra and Mabbuke. The line will then run north-east between the villages Rattoke and Mabbuke to the junction of villages Rattoke, Mabbuke, and Gajjal. From that point the line will run along the boundary between villages Mabbuke and Gajjal, and then turn south along the eastern boundary of village Mabbuke to its junction with village Nagar Aimanpur. It will then turn along the north-eastern boundary of village Nagar Aimanpur, and run along its eastern boundary to its junction with village Masteke. From there it will run along the eastern boundary of village Masteke to where it meets the boundary between the tahsils of Kasur and Ferozepore.

For the purpose of identifying the villages referred to in this paragraph, I attach a map of the Kasur tahsil authorised by the then Settlement Officer, Lahore District, which was supplied to the commission by the Provincial Government

4 The line will then run in a south westerly direction down the Sutlej River on the boundary between the Districts of Lahore and Ferozepure to the point where the districts of Ferozepure, Lahore and Montgomery meet. It will continue along the boundary between the districts Ferozepure and Montgomery to the point where this boundary meets the border of Bahawalpur State. The district boundaries, and not the actual course of the Sutlej River, shall in each case constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab

5 It is my intention that this boundary line should ensure that the canal headworks at Sulemanke will fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the West Punjab. If the existing delimitation of the boundaries of Montgomery District does not ensure this, I award to the West Punjab so much of the territory concerned as covers the headworks, and the boundary shall be adjusted accordingly

6 So much of the Punjab Province as lies to the west of the line demarcated in the preceding paragraphs shall be the territory of West Punjab. So much of the territory of the Punjab Province as lies to the east of that line shall be the territory of the East Punjab

PART V

Legislative Powers

CHAPTER I.

Distribution of Powers

99 Extent of Dominion and Provincial laws —

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Dominion Legislature may make laws (including laws having extra-territorial operation) for the whole or any part of the Dominion, and a Provincial Legislature may make laws for the Province or for any part thereof

[Sub-section (2) omitted]

The general legislative powers conferred respectively on the Federal Legislature and the Provincial Legislature by subsection (1) of s 99 are subject inter alia to the provisions of s 298 Punjab Province v Daulat Singh [1946] FCR 1

For observations of the Federal Court on the scope of the legislative power conferred by the section, see The Governor General in Council v Raleigh Investment Company [1944] FCR 229, at p 251 et seq

100 Subject-matter of Dominion and Provincial laws —

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the two next succeeding sub-sections, the Dominion Legislature has, and a Provincial Legislature has not, power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List I in the Seventh Schedule to this Act (hereinafter called the "Federal Legislative List")

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the next succeeding sub-section, the Dominion Legislature, and, subject to the preceding sub-section, a Provincial Legislature also, have power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List III in the said Schedule (hereinafter called the "Concurrent Legislative List")

(3) Subject to the two preceding sub-sections, the Provincial Legislature has, and the Dominion Legislature has not, power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II in the said Schedule (hereinafter called the "Provincial Legislative List")

(4) The Dominion Legislature has power to make laws with respect to matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List except for a Province or any part thereof

For an exposition on the subject of Dominion and Provincial spheres of legislation, see the cases referred to below

A general power ought not to be so construed as to make a nullity of a particular power conferred by the same Act and operating in the same field. It is a fundamental assumption that the legislative powers of the Centre and the Provinces cannot have been intended to be in conflict with one another only if a reconciliation between the two proves impossible is it permissible to have recourse to the non obstante provisions in s 100 (1) and (3) of the Constitution Act, and in that case the Federal power will prevail In re the C P and Berar Act No XIV of 1938 [1939] FCR 18

The principles laid down by the Judicial Committee in decisions interpreting the provisions of the British North America Act distributing legislative power between the Dominion and the provincial parliaments, may be accepted as a guide for the interpretation of s 100 of the Constitution Act and the Lists in the Seventh Schedule of that Act ALSPPL Subrahmanyam Chettiar v Muttuswami Goundan (1940) FCR 188

In a recent case relating to the validity of the Money Lenders' Act, Profulla Kumar Mukherji v Bank of Commerce Ltd, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council quoted with approval the following passage in the judgment of Gayer CJ in Subrahmanyam Chettiar's case (supra) at p 201 — "It must inevitably happen from time to time that legislation, though purporting to deal with a subject in one List touches also upon a subject in another List, and the different provisions of the enactment may be so closely intertwined that blind adherence to a strictly verbal interpretation would result in a large number of statutes being declared invalid because the legislature enacting them may appear to have legislated in a forbidden sphere. Hence the rule which has been evolved by the Judicial Committee, whereby the main statute is examined to ascertain its pith and substance or its true nature and character for the purpose of determining whether it is legislation in respect of matters in this List or in that." In Their Lordships' view the subjects must still overlap. Where they do, the question must be asked what in pith and substance is the effect of the enactment, of which complaint is made and in what List its true nature and character is to be found. As regards the relative precedence to be accorded to the three Legislative Lists in the Government of India Act, Their Lordships have held that where they come in conflict List I has priority over Lists III and II, and List III has priority over List II. As regards this priority itself, in each case one has to consider what the substance of an Act is and, whatever its ancillary effect, attribute it to the appropriate List according to its true character. See also Bhola Prasad v King Emperor, [1942] FCR 17, Administrator, Lahore Municipality v Daulat Ram Kapoor, [1942] FCR 31, and Bank of Commerce Ltd v Amulya Krishna Basu [1944] FCR 126.

101 Extent of power to legislate for States — Nothing in this Act shall be construed as empowering the Dominion Legislature to make laws for an Accessing State otherwise than in accordance with the Instrument of Accession of that State and any limitations contained therein

102 Power of Dominion Legislature to legislate if an emergency is proclaimed —(1) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding sections of this chapter, the Dominion Legislature shall, if the Governor-General has declared by Proclamation (in this Act referred to as a "Proclamation of Emergency") that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India is threatened, whether by war or internal disturbance, have power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List, [or to make laws, whether or not for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any matter not enumerated in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule to this Act]

Provided that no Bill or amendment for the purposes aforesaid shall be introduced or moved without the previous sanction of the Governor-General, and the Governor-General shall not give his sanction unless it appears to him that the provision proposed to be made is a proper provision in view of the nature of the emergency

(2) Nothing in this section shall restrict the power of a Provincial Legislature to make any law which under this Act it has power to make, but if any provision of a Provincial law is repugnant to any provision of a Dominion law which the Dominion Legislature has under this section power to make, the Dominion law, whether passed before or after the Provincial law, shall prevail, and the Provincial law shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long only as the Dominion law continues to have effect, be void

(3) A Proclamation of Emergency may be revoked by a subsequent Proclamation

(4) A law made by the Dominion Legislature which that Legislature would not but for the issue of a Proclamation of Emergency have been competent to make shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation has ceased to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period²

(5) A Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of India is threatened by war or by internal disturbance may be made before the actual occurrence of war or of any such disturbance if the Governor-General is satisfied that there is imminent danger thereof

For observations of Federal Court on power of Federal Legislature to make laws for a Province in an emergency, see Pare Dusadh and others v King Emperor, [1944] F C R 61 at p. 105 et seq., Basanta Chandra Ghose v King Emperor (1914) F C R, 295, at pp. 305-306

² For amendment of this subsection made in 1943, see the India (Central Government and Legislature) Act, 1946 Annexure II

103 Power of Dominion Legislature to legislate for two or more Provinces by consent—If it appears to the Legislatures of two or more Provinces to be desirable that any of the matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List should be regulated in those Provinces by Act of the Dominion Legislature, and if resolutions to that effect are passed by all the Chambers of those Provincial Legislatures, it shall be lawful for the Dominion Legislature to pass an Act for regulating that matter accordingly, but any Act so passed may, as respects any Province to which it applies, be amended or repealed by an Act of the Legislature of that Province.

104 Residual powers of Legislation—(1) The Governor-General may by public notification empower either the Dominion Legislature or a Provincial Legislature to enact a law with respect to any matter not enumerated in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule to this Act, including a law imposing a tax not mentioned in any such list, and the executive authority of the Dominion or of the Province, as the case may be, shall extend to the administration of any law so made unless the Governor-General otherwise directs.

Sub-section (2) (omitted)

The Federal Legislature has no power to make a law providing for the levy of estate duty of the nature and with the incidence of estate duty under the English Law. The levy of such a duty is not a matter included in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule to the Act In re Levy of Estate Duty (1944) F C R 317. Consequently the Federal Legislative List was amended to include a new item relating to Estate duty. See entry No. 56A of List I. A corresponding addition was also made in S 137 of the Act by the India (Estate Duty) act, 1945.

105 (Omitted)

106 Provisions as to legislation for giving effect to international agreements—(1) The Dominion Legislature shall not by reason only of the entry in the Federal Legislative List relating to the implementing of treaties and agreements with other countries have power to make any law for any Province except with the previous consent of the Governor or for an Accessing State except with the previous consent of the Ruler thereof.

(2) So much of any law as is valid only by virtue of any such entry as aforesaid may be repealed by the Dominion Legislature and may, on the treaty or agreement in question ceasing to have effect, be repealed as respects any Province or State by a law of that Province or State.

(3) Nothing in this section applies in relation to any law which the Dominion Legislature has power to make for a

Province or, as the case may be, an Acceding State, by virtue of any other entry in the Federal or the Concurrent Legislative List as well as by virtue of the said entry

107* Inconsistency between Dominion laws and Provincial, or State, laws —(1) If any provision of a Provincial law is repugnant to any provision of a Dominion law which the Dominion Legislature is competent to enact or to any provision of an existing law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List, then, subject to the provisions of this section, the Dominion law, whether passed before or after the Provincial law or, as the case may be, the existing law, shall prevail and the Provincial law shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void

(2) Where a Provincial law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List contains any provision repugnant to the provisions of an earlier Dominion law or an existing law with respect to that matter, then, if the Provincial law, having been reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General, has received the assent of the Governor-General, the Provincial law shall in that Province prevail, but nevertheless the Dominion Legislature may at any time enact further legislation with respect to the same matter

Provided that no Bill or amendment for making any provision repugnant to any Provincial law, which, having been so reserved, has received the assent of the Governor-General, shall be introduced or moved in the Dominion Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General

(3) If any provision of a law of an Acceding State is repugnant to a Dominion law which extends to that State, the Dominion law, whether passed before or after the law of the State, shall prevail and the law of the State shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void

Where the problem is one of conflict between the provisions of a local law and those of a Central enactment, each being in reference to a subject on which it is authorised to legislate, it is the doctrine of repugnancy and not the doctrine of ultra vires that has to be applied. The question of severability arises only when an Act is to some extent ultra vires. Bank of Commerce Ltd. v Amulya Krishna Basu, 1944 F C R 126

109 Requirements as to sanctions and recommendations to be regarded as matters of procedure

only—(1) Where under any provision of this Act the previous sanction or recommendation of the Governor-General or of a Governor is required to the introduction or passing of a Bill or the moving of an amendment, the giving of the sanction or recommendation shall not be construed as precluding him from exercising subsequently in regard to the Bill in question any powers conferred upon him by this Act with respect to the withholding of assent to, or the reservation of, Bills

(2) No Act of the Dominion Legislature or a Provincial Legislature, and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some previous sanction or recommendation was not given, if assent to that Act was given—

- (a) where the previous sanction or recommendation required was that of the Governor, either by the Governor, or by the Governor-General,
- (b) where the previous sanction or recommendation required was that of the Governor-General, by the Governor-General

(3) All contracts made in the exercise of the executive authority of the Dominion or of a Province shall be expressed to be made by the Governor-General or by the Governor of the Province, as the case may be, and all such contracts and all assurances of property made in the exercise of that authority shall be executed on behalf of the Governor-General or Governor by such persons and in such manner as he may direct or authorise.

(4) Neither the Governor-General, nor the Governor of a Province, nor the Secretary of State shall be personally liable in respect of any contract or assurance made or executed for the purposes of this Act, or for the purposes of the Government of India Act or of any Act repealed thereby, nor shall any person making or executing any such contract or assurance on behalf of any of them be personally liable in respect thereof.

176 Suits and proceedings—(1) The Dominion may sue or be sued by the name of the Dominion of India and a Provincial Government may sue or be sued by the name of the Province, and, without prejudice to the subsequent provisions of this chapter, may subject to any provisions which may be made by Act of the Dominion Legislature or a Provincial Legislature enacted by virtue of powers conferred on the Legislature by this Act, sue or be sued in relation to their respective affairs in the like cases as the Secretary of State in Council might have sued or been sued if this Act had not been passed.

PART IX
The Judicature.
CHAPTER I
The Federal Court

200¹ Establishment and constitution of Federal Court—(1) There shall be a Federal Court consisting of a Chief Justice of India and such number of other Judges as the Governor-General may deem necessary, but unless and until a resolution is passed by the Dominion Legislature approving an increase in the number of judges, the number of puisne judges shall not exceed six

(2) Every judge of the Federal Court shall be appointed by order of the Governor-General and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-five years

Provided that—

- (a) a judge may by resignation under his hand addressed to the Governor-General resign his office,
 - (b) a judge may be removed from his office by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual on the ground of misbehaviour or of infirmity of mind or body, if the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on reference being made to them, report that the judge ought on any such ground to be removed
- (3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a judge of the Federal Court unless he—

- (a) has been for at least five years a judge of a High Court, or
- (b) is a barrister of England or Northern Ireland of at least ten years standing or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland of at least ten years standing, or ¹ The Federal Court was established on the 1st of October 1937, consisting of a Chief Justice and two puisne judges. Though a decade has passed since its establishment, the number of judges has remained the same, and the work of the Court has also been exclusively constitutional in character. Section 206 of the Act was not brought into operation either in 1937 or subsequently that is, prior to 15th August 1947 with the result that the civil appellate jurisdiction contemplated by the Act was never conferred on the court. It is now for the Dominion Legislature to consider what further jurisdiction should be conferred on the court. For the present, the Federal Court Order, 1947, does no more than constitute the court as a Federal Court for the Dominion of India.

(c) has been for at least ten years a pleader of a High Court or of two or more such Courts in succession

(4) (Omitted)

Provided that—

(ii) in relation to the Chief Justice of India, for the references in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this subsection to ten years there shall be substituted references to fifteen years

In computing for the purposes of this subsection the standing of a barrister or a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or the period during which a person has been a pleader, any period during which a person has held judicial office after he became a barrister; a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader, as the case may be, shall be included

In this sub-section the expression "High Court" includes a High Court in an Acceding State and any court which was a High Court in British India

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of the Federal Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor-General or some person appointed by him an oath according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act

201 Salaries etc of judges—The judges of the Federal Court shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions as may from time to time be fixed by the Governor-General

Provided that neither the salary of a judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

202 (1) Temporary appointment of acting Chief-Justice and puisne Judges—If the office of Chief Justice of India becomes vacant or if the Chief Justice is by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some person permanently appointed to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the Chief Justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be performed by such one of the other judges of the court as the Governor-General may appoint as acting Chief Justice

Power to appoint acting puisne judges of the Federal Court—(2) If the office of any other judge of the Federal Court becomes vacant or if any such judge is appointed to act temporarily as Chief Justice of India or is by reason of absence, or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, the Governor-General may appoint a Judge of a High Court who is duly qualified for appointment as a judge of the Federal Court to act temporarily as a judge of that court, and the person so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General thinks fit to revoke his appointment, be deemed to be a judge of the Federal Court until some person permanently appointed to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the permanent judge has resumed his duties.

(3) If the Governor-General is satisfied, after considering a report from the Chief Justice of India—

- (a) that in view of some personal interest which any judge of the Federal Court has in the decision of any particular case, or of some part which any judge of the Federal Court has already taken, as judge or counsel or otherwise, in or in relation to any particular case (whether or not while it was before the Federal Court), that judge ought not to take part in the hearing and determination thereof, and
- (b) that without that judge there are not sufficient judges of the Federal Court available to sit for that purpose, the Governor-General may appoint a judge of a High Court who is duly qualified for appointment as judge of the Federal Court to act temporarily as a judge of that court and the person so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General thinks fit to revoke his appointment, be deemed to be a judge of the Federal Court until that case has been heard and determined by the Federal Court.

203 Seat of Federal Court—The Federal Court shall be a court of record and shall sit in Delhi and at such other place or places, if any, as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the Governor-General, from time to time appoint.

204 Original jurisdiction of Federal Court—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Court shall, to the exclusion of any other court, have an original jurisdiction in any dispute between any two or more of the following parties, that is to say, the Dominion, any of the Provinces or any of the Acceding States, if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends.

Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to—

- (a) a dispute to which a State is a party, unless the dispute—
 - (i) concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder before the date of the establishment of the Dominion, or of an order made thereunder on or after that date, or the interpretation of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of any order made thereunder, or the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Dominion by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of that State, or
 - (ii) arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Dominion Legislature, or otherwise concerns some matter with respect to which the Dominion Legislature has power to make laws for that State, or
 - (iii) arises under an agreement between that State and the Dominion or a Province, being an agreement, which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall extend to such a dispute, and in the case of an agreement with a Province, has been made with the approval of the Governor-General
- (b) a dispute arising under any agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to such a dispute

(2) The Federal Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction shall not pronounce any judgment other than a declaratory judgment

This section deals with the original jurisdiction of the Federal Court, and ss 205 and 207 with its appellate jurisdiction in appeals from High Courts in "India" and Acceding States respectively. Explaining this section, the Solicitor General, speaking on the original Government of India Bill, observed as follows: "In drafting this clause we have followed the recommendations of the Joint Select Committee. We have passed clauses which specifically deal with the matter of suits being brought against the Province or the Federation. But there are many cases today in India in which private individuals have rights against and can sue the Federation. It would be most oppressive and inconvenient if any litigant who had a claim against the Federation had to go up from the far end of India to the central place where the Federal Court will sit to prosecute his claim. It would seem quite unnecessary in what I may call ordinary cases. But you may get cases where there is some question as to whether legislation is or is not ultra vires. Let (the case) go first to the local court. Let it be sifted and dealt with there, and let it go from there to the Federal Court. For these reasons, we believe that the scheme of the Bill, under which original and exclusive jurisdiction is confined to disputes between units of the new constitution is better." See also the provision made in s 225 for transfer of certain cases to High Courts.

So far, the original jurisdiction of the Federal Court has been invoked only in two cases The United Provinces v. The Governor General in Council (1939) F.C.R. 124, and The Governor General in Council v. The Province of Madras (1943) F.C.R. I. In the second case an appeal was preferred to His Majesty in Council, and it was dismissed.

205 Appellate Jurisdiction of Federal Court in appeals from High Courts—(1) An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court, if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council made thereunder before the date of the establishment of the Dominion or any order made thereunder on or after that date or as to the interpretation of the Indian Independence Act, 1947 or of any order made thereunder, and it shall be the duty of every High Court to consider in every case whether or not any such question is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly.

(2) Where such a certificate is given, any party in the case may appeal to the Federal Court on the ground that any such question as aforesaid has been wrongly decided, and on any ground on which that party could have appealed without special leave to His Majesty in Council if no such certificate had been given, and, with the leave of Federal Court, on any other ground, and no direct appeal shall lie to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave.

The words "before the date of the establishment of the Dominion or any order made thereunder on or after that date or as to the interpretation of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of any order made thereunder" have been added by the India Prov Cons Order, 1947. The constitutional jurisdiction of the Court has thus been made comprehensive.

Section 205 imposes on the High Court the duty of considering and determining in every case as part of its judgment, decree or final order, the giving or withholding of a certificate, when the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act or any Order in Council made thereunder. The jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such judgment, decree or final order depends on such determination by the High Court, and accordingly such determination, whether it involves the granting or withholding of a certificate, should be recorded, not only for the information of the parties, but also for the certification of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the Federal Court as to their jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Errol Mackay v. Oswald Forbes, (1938) 67 Ind. App. 64. In another case last year on the High Court not expressing any opinion as regards any constitutional point of substance being involved in the case, the appellant proceeded to the Privy Council with an application praying for special leave to appeal. On the refusal of the Privy Council to entertain the application the appellant moved the High Court for a certificate under s. 205, which the High Court granted at that stage, and thereafter the matter went up in appeal to the Federal Court. Gill v. King Emperor (1946) F.C.R. 123.

The duty imposed by s. 205 on every High Court in British India to consider in every case whether or not a substantial question of law is involved is directory and not mandatory. That duty was only imposed on judges of High Courts in cases where there was a reasonable possibility that such a question may arise. Where therefore there was no possible ground for thinking that any such question could be involved in the appeal and there was no certificate by the High Court, His Majesty in Council had jurisdiction to hear the appeal. Punjab Co-operative Bank Ltd v Commissioner of Income tax, Lahore, (1940) 67 I A 464

The words "judgment, decree or final order" in s 205 (!) of the Constitution Act do not limit the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court to Civil cases. The Court has jurisdiction in criminal as well as civil cases. Hari Ram Singh v The Crown, (1939) F C R 159

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has observed that the condition of the law of habeas corpus in India, and the purpose and express words of s 205 of the Government of India Act, afford a contrast to the condition of the English law and the object and general terms of s 19 of the Judicature Act 1873. S 205 relates to both the civil and criminal jurisdiction of the High Courts and in the absence of an express exception of habeas corpus cases and in view of its terms and purpose, it cannot be limited by construction so as to exclude such cases from its operation. S 205 provides one of the exceptions referred to in s 404 of the Criminal Procedure Code. King Emperor v Silmath Banerji, (1945) F C R 195 (P C)

No appeal lies to the Federal Court in the absence of a certificate under Section 205 of the Government of India Act. A certificate is a condition precedent to every appeal. The Federal Court cannot question the refusal of a High Court to grant a certificate or investigate the reasons which prompted the refusal, if the High Court has given none. The Court cannot do indirectly what it cannot do directly. Gauta v The Chief Justice and Judges of Lahore High Court, (1941) F C R 54 See also Pashupati Bharat v Secretary of State for India, (1939) F C R 13 Lakhpatram v Behar Lal Misir, (1939) F C R 121, and Hishori Lal v Governor-in-Council, Punjab, (1940) F C R 12

In Hafiz Mohd Ahmed Said Khan v Shiam Lal, 1944 A L J 397 F B the Allahabad High Court has held that the test is not merely the importance of the question, but its importance to the case itself. If the facts of the case depend upon the consideration of that point it will be deemed to be "involved". "The Act is a new act and no light is available from any previous judicial pronouncement, but s 110 of the Civil Procedure Code is a section pari materia".

In a case turning on the question of the validity of s 11 of the Bihar Money Lenders' Act 1938, where the High Court at Patna had granted a certificate under s 205, it was contended that the certificate had become infructuous and ineffective and that the Federal Court had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal either on the constitutional issue or on any other ground on account of the fact that the said s 11 of the Bihar Act had, since the grant of the certificate, been repealed and is enacted with retrospective effect by the Provincial Legislature. The Federal Court held that when jurisdiction to hear an appeal is vested in the Court by the grant of a certificate under s 205, it cannot be divested by any subsequent event. A certificate once granted cannot be cancelled or abrogated. S 15 of the CPC has no application, and there is no inherent power to alter a decree or certificate, which was correct at the time when it was made or given, namely, by reason of the happening of some subsequent event. Subhanand Choudhry v Apurba Krishna Mitra, (1940) F C R 31. See also Surendra Prasad Narayan Singh v Sri Gajadhar Prasad, (1946) F C R 39.

When an appeal before the Federal Court is terminated by an order of remand directing the lower court to try the case afresh and pass the appropriate decree, the decree passed by that court after the remand can be questioned.

before the Federal Court only by a new and independent appeal, which must fulfil the requirements of s 205 Surya Narayan Anand v The N W F P, [1942] 1 FCR 113

Whether a suit lies under s 42 of the Specific Relief Act against a Provincial Government for a declaration that a provincial statute is ultra vires, and whether an appeal will lie to the Federal Court under s 205 from the judgment of a single judge of a High Court when the judgment is appealable to a Division Bench of the same High Court, left open (1943) FCR 73, [1945] FCR (J C) 111, at p 123

If a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act or any Order in Council made thereunder is involved in a case heard by a single judge of a High Court, and a judgment, decree or final order is given in that case, a certificate under s 205 (1) of the Constitution Act not only may, but should be granted, and thereupon an appeal would lie direct to the Federal Court, even though under the Letters Patent of the Court, the aggrieved party could appeal to a Division Bench of the High Court It is difficult to lead out of s 205 or any other section of the Act any power or discretion on the score to refuse to hear a case in which a certificate has been granted, or to put an appellant on terms, i.e., right of appeal to the Division Bench should first be exercised, and it is doubtful whether the Federal Court has any such power or discretion Rao Bahadur Kunwar Lal Singh v The Central Provinces & Berar (1944) FCR 284

Under the principle of the ruling in Colonial Sugar Refining Company v Irving (1905) A.C. 369 the right to continue a duly instituted suit was in the nature of a vested right which could not be taken away except by a clear indication of intention to that effect In the absence of such clear indication in the Constitution Act, the court in which the suit was instituted continued to have jurisdiction to proceed with the trial even with regard to properties situated in Burma, which ceased to be part of India from 1st April, 1937 Venugopala Reddias v Krishnamurti Reddias (1943) FCR 39

The Federal Court has power under this section and s 209 (1) to make such an order on an appeal as the Court below could have made if the case had been heard by them at the date on which the appeal was heard Shyama Kant Lal v Rambajan Singh (1939) FCR 193

206 Power of Dominion Legislature to enlarge appellate Jurisdiction —(1) The Dominion Legislature may by Act provide that in such civil cases as may be specified in the Act an appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a judgment decree or final order of a High Court without any such certificate as aforesaid

(2) If the Dominion Legislature makes such provision as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection, consequential provision may also be made by Act of the Dominion Legislature for the abolition in whole or in part of direct appeals in civil cases from High Courts to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave

“ A Bill or amendment for any of the purposes specified in this section shall not be introduced into, or moved in, the Dominion Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General

207 Appellate Jurisdiction of Federal Court in appeals from High Courts in Acceding States —(1) An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a High Court in an Acceding State on the ground that a question of law has been wrongly decided being a question which concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder before the date of the establishment of the Dominion, or an order made thereunder on or after that date, or concerns the interpretation of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of an order made thereunder or concerns the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Dominion by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of that State, or arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Dominion Legislature.

(2) An appeal under this section shall be by way of special case to be stated for the opinion of the Federal Court by the High Court, and the Federal Court may require a case to be so stated and may return any case so stated in order that further facts may be stated therein.

208 Appeals to His Majesty in Council —An appeal may be brought to His Majesty in Council from a decision of the Federal Court—

(a) from any judgment of the Federal Court given in the exercise of its original jurisdiction in any dispute, which concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder before the date of the establishment of the Dominion or an order made thereunder on or after that date, or concerns the interpretation of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of an order made thereunder, or concerns the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Dominion by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of any State, or arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in any State of a law of the Dominion Legislature, without leave, and

(b) in any other case, by leave of the Federal Court or of His Majesty in Council.

In Sabrahamyan Chettiar v Muttuswami Goundan (1941) F. C II 4 the Federal Court observed as follows. The Court will not formulate in advance any code of rules for the granting or withholding of leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council. But the Court will not be disposed to grant leave to appeal, save in cases of real importance. Dealing with a batch of applications for leave to appeal in 1941, the Court added that it would not be disposed to encourage Indian litigants to seek for the determination of constitutional questions elsewhere than in their own Supreme Court (1942) F. C R 109. As to special leave of His Majesty in Council, as early as 1940 the Board remarked An appeal from the Federal Court will not lightly be admitted, and only if it arises in a really substantial case Hari Ram Singh v King Emperor, (1940) F C R 15 (P C)

209¹ Form of judgment on appeal—(1) The Federal Court shall, where it allows an appeal, remit the case to the court from which the appeal was brought with a declaration as to the judgment, decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment, decree or order appealed against, and the court from which the appeal was brought shall give effect to the decision of the Federal Court

(2) Where the Federal Court upon any appeal makes any order as to the costs of the proceedings in the Federal Court, it shall, as soon as the amount of the costs to be paid is ascertained, transmit its order for the payment of that sum to the court from which the appeal was brought and that court shall give effect to the order

(3) The Federal Court may, subject to such terms or conditions as it may think fit to impose, order a stay of execution in any case under appeal to the court, pending the hearing of the appeal, and execution shall be stayed accordingly

The use of the word 'shall' in sub section (1) cannot reasonably be considered to mean that in every case the Federal Court is under an obligation to declare the judgment, decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment, decree or order appealed against. The form of the order to be passed by the Federal Court must necessarily vary according to the circumstances and requirements of each case. This provision contemplates that the Federal Court should make a declaration and not itself pass an executable decree, because it has no machinery for executing decrees, but it does not follow that a High Court has only the status of an executing Court in respect of all matters heard on appeal by the Federal Court. Keshav Tulpade v King Emporer (1943) F C R 88

As regards costs between two Governments in suits, see The United Provinces v Governor General in Council (1939) F C R 124, and Governor General in Council v the Province of Madras (1943) F C R 1. See also (1939) F C R 18, at p 57.

As regards Privy Council appeals involving constitutional questions between two Governments, reference may be made to the usual practice in Canadian appeals of making no order as to costs. See the Board's observation that the position in India though not strictly the same as in Canada, was very analogous [1945] F C R 194.

210 Enforcement of decrees and orders of Federal Court and orders as to discovery, etc—(1) All authorities civil and judicial, throughout the Dominion, shall act in aid of the Federal Court

(2) The Federal Court shall have power to make any order for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person,

1 For a discussion on the form of judgment on appeal, see Keshav Tulpade v The King Emperor [1943] F C R 88

the discovery or production of any documents, or the investigation or punishment of any contempt of court¹, which any High Court has power to make as respects the territory within its jurisdiction, and any such orders and any orders of the Federal Court as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings therein, shall be enforceable by all courts and authorities in every part of a Governor's Province, Chief Commissioner's Province or Acceding State as if they were orders duly made by the highest court exercising civil or criminal jurisdiction, as the case may be, in that part.

(3) Nothing in this section—

- (a) shall apply to any such order with respect to costs as is mentioned in subsection (2) of the last preceding section, or
- (b) shall, as regards an Acceding State, apply in relation to any jurisdiction exercisable by the Federal Court by reason only of the making by the Dominion Legislature of such provision as is mentioned in this chapter for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court.

211 Letters of request to Acceding States—Where in any case the Federal Court require a special case to be stated or re-stated by, or remit a case to, or order a stay of execution in a case from, a High Court in an Acceding State, or require the aid of the civil or judicial authorities in an Acceding State, the Federal Court shall cause letters of request in that behalf to be sent to the Ruler of the State and the Ruler shall cause such communication to be made to the High Court or to any judicial or civil authority as the circumstances may require.

212 Law declared by Federal Court and Privy Council to be binding on all Courts—The law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Privy Council shall, so far as applicable, be recognised as binding on, and shall be followed by, all courts in any Governor's Province or Chief Commissioner's Province, and, so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council or order thereunder, or of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of any order thereunder, or any matter with respect to which the Dominion Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State, in any Acceding State.

1213 Power of Governor-General to consult Federal Court.—(1) If at any time it appears to the Governor-General that a question of law has arisen, or is likely to arise, which is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Federal Court upon it, he may refer the question to that court for consideration, and the court may after such hearing as they think fit, report to the Governor General thereon

(2) No report shall be made under this section save in accordance with an opinion delivered in open court with the concurrence of a majority of the judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this sub section shall be deemed to prevent a judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting opinion

214 Rules of court, etc—(1) The Federal Court may from time to time, with the approval of the Governor-General, make rules of court for regulating generally the practice and procedure of the court, including rules as to the persons practising before the court, as to the time within which appeals to the court are to be entered, as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings in the court, and as to the fees to be charged in respect of proceedings therein, and in particular may make rules providing for the summary determination of any appeal which appears to the court to be frivolous or vexatious or brought for the purpose of delay

(2) Rules made under this section may fix the minimum number of judges who are to sit for any purpose, so however that no case shall be decided by less than three judges

Provided that, if the Dominion Legislature makes such provision as is mentioned in this chapter for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the court the rules shall provide for the constitution of a special division of the court for the purpose of deciding all cases which would have been within the jurisdiction of the court even if its jurisdiction had not been so enlarged

(3) Subject to the provisions of any rules of court, the Chief Justice of India shall determine what judges are to constitute any division of the court and what judges are to sit for any purpose

(4) No judgment shall be delivered by the Federal Court save in open court and with the concurrence of a majority of the judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to prevent a judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting judgment

(5) All proceedings in the Federal Court shall be in the English language

215 Ancillary powers of Federal Court—The Dominion Legislature may make provision by Act for conferring upon the Federal Court such supplemental powers not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Act as may appear to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of enabling the court more effectively to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Act

216 Expenses of Federal Court—(1) The administrative expenses of the Federal Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the court, shall be charged upon the revenues of the Dominion, and any fees or other moneys taken by the court shall form part of those revenues

[Sub-section (2) (Omitted)]

217. Construction of references to High Courts in States—References in any provision of this Part of this Act to a High Court in an Acceding State shall be construed as references to any court which the Governor-General may, after communication with the Ruler of the State, declare to be a High Court for the purposes of that provision

218 Savings—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as conferring, or empowering the Dominion Legislature to confer, any right of appeal to the Federal Court in any case in which a High Court is exercising jurisdiction on appeal from a court outside India, or as affecting any right of appeal in any such case to His Majesty in Council with or without leave

CHAPTER II

The High Courts in India

219 Meaning of "High Court"—(1) The following courts shall in relation to India be deemed to be High Courts for the purposes of this Act, that is to say, the High Courts in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Patna and Nagpur, the High Court of East Punjab, the Chief Court in Oudh, any other court in India constituted or reconstituted under this chapter as a High Court, and any other comparable court in India which an Act of the appropriate Legislature may declare to be a High Court for the purposes of this Act

Provided that if provision is made by His Majesty by Letters Patent for the establishment of a High Court to replace any court or courts mentioned in this sub-section, then as from the establishment of the new court this section shall have effect as if the new court were mentioned therein in lieu of the court or courts so replaced

(2) The provisions of this chapter shall apply to every High Court in India

(3) In this Chapter, "India" means the territories comprised in the Governors' Provinces and Chief Commissioners' Provinces, and does not include any Acceding State

220 Constitution of High courts—(1) Every High Court shall be a court of record and shall consist of a chief justice and such other judges as the Governor-General may from time to time deem it necessary to appoint

Provided that the judges so appointed together with any additional judges appointed by the Governor-General in accordance with the following provisions of this chapter shall at no time exceed in number such maximum number as the Governor-General may by order fix in relation to that court

(2) Every judge of a High Court shall be appointed by the Governor-General and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty years

Provided that—

- (c) has for at least five years held a judicial office in India not inferior to that of a subordinate judge or judge of a small cause court, or

In computing for the purposes of this subsection the standing of a barrister or a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or the period during which a person has been a pleader, any period during which the person has held judicial office after he became a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or a pleader as the case may be, shall be included and in computing the period during which a person has served as a Judge of a High Court, or been a pleader of a High Court, or held judicial office in India, any period before the establishment of the Dominion during which the person has served as a Judge or been a pleader of a High Court in British India or has held judicial office in India, as the case may be, shall be included

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of a High Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor, or some person appointed by him an oath according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act

221 Salaries &c of judges—The judges of the several High Courts shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment, and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions as may from time to time be fixed by order of the Governor-General chief justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be, be performed by such one of the other judges of the court as the Governor-General may think fit to appoint as acting Chief Justice

(2) If the office of any other judge of a High Court becomes vacant, or if any such judge is appointed to act temporarily as a chief justice or is by reason of absence, or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office, the Governor-General may appoint a person duly qualified for appointment as a judge to act as a judge of that court, and the person so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General thinks fit to revoke his appointment be deemed to be a judge of that court until some person permanently appointed to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the permanent judge has resumed his duties

(5) If by reason of any temporary increase in the business of any High Court or by reason of arrears of work in any such court it appears to the Governor-General that the number of the judges of the court should be for the time being increased, the Governor-General may, subject to the foregoing provisions of this chapter with respect to the maximum number of judges, appoint persons duly qualified for appointment as judges to be additional judges of the court for such period not exceeding two years as he may specify

223 Jurisdiction of existing High Courts—Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, to the provisions of any Order in Council made under this or any other Act, to the provisions of any order made under the Indian Independence Act, 1947, and to the provisions of any Act of the appropriate Legislature enacted by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Act, the jurisdiction of, and the law administered in, any existing High Court, and the respective powers of the judges thereof in relation to the administration of justice in the court, including any power to make rules of court and to regulate the sittings of the court and of members thereof sitting alone or in division courts, shall be the same as immediately before the establishment of the Dominion

Under the express terms of this section, it is within the power of the Indian Legislature to alter the jurisdiction and powers of High Courts, and the jurisdiction can also be taken away by any ordinance of the Governor General by virtue of s 311 (6). King Emperor vs Benarsi Lal Sainia and others, (1949) 3 O.R. 96 Confirmed on appeal by Judicial Committee, (1945) F.C.R. 161 P.C See also Basant Chandra Ghose vs King Emperor, (1944) F.C.R. 295

224 Administrative functions of High Courts—

(1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts in India for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say,—

- (a) call for returns,
- (b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts,
- (c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts, and
- (d) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff attorneys, and all clerks and officers of courts

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor

(2) Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to a High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision

225 Transfer of certain cases to High Court for trial—(1) If on an application made in accordance with the provisions of this section a High Court is satisfied that a case pending in an inferior court, being a case which the High Court has power to transfer to itself for trial, involves or is likely to involve the question of the validity of any Dominion or Provincial Act, it shall exercise that power

(2) An application for the purposes of this section shall not be made except, in relation to a Dominion Act by the Advocate-General for the Dominion and, in relation to a Provincial Act by the Advocate-General for the Dominion or the Advocate General for the Province

226 Jurisdiction in revenue matters—(1) Until otherwise provided by Act of the appropriate Legislature, no High Court shall have any original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue, or concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force.

(2) A Bill or amendment for making such provision as aforesaid shall not be introduced into or moved in the Dominion

Legislature or in a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General or as the case may be, of the Governor

In a case where the income tax and super tax levied by the Indian Government was paid under protest, a suit was brought to declare that the assessment and demand of the tax were ultra vires the law making powers of the Indian Legislature. The Federal Court held that the restriction regarding jurisdiction imposed by s 226 is absolute, if the dispute concerns 'revenue', taking the word in its ordinary sense. The Section is not limited to steps taken in the collection of revenue, it applies also to the demand or assessment. The Court further held that the source of dividends paid to the plaintiff company by sterling companies was British Indian and in making dividends liable to income tax and super tax on that basis the Indian Legislature was not giving its law any extra territorial operation. Even if there be any extra territorial operation it was within the power of the Indian [Legislature] Governor-General in Council v Raleigh Investment Co Ltd (1944) F C R 239 See also Governor General in Council v Shimomans Sugar Mills Ltd [1946] F C R 40

227 Proceedings of High Courts to be in English—All proceedings in every High Court shall be in the English language

228 Expenses of High Courts—(1) The administrative expenses of a High Court including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the court and the salaries and allowances of the judges of the court, shall be charged upon the revenues of the Province, and any fees or other moneys taken by the court shall form part of those revenues

[Sub-section (2) (Omitted)]

229 Power of His Majesty to constitute or reconstitute High Court by letters patent.—(1) His Majesty if the Chamber or Chambers of the Legislature of any Province present an address in that behalf to the Governor of the Province for submission to His Majesty, may by letters patent constitute a High Court for that Province or any part thereof or reconstitute in like manner any existing High Court for that Province or for any part thereof, or, where there are two High Courts in that Province, amalgamate those courts

(2) Where any Court is reconstituted or two Courts are amalgamated, as aforesaid, the letters patent shall provide for the continuance in their respective offices of the existing judges officers and servants of the Court or Courts, and for the carrying on before the reconstituted Court or the new Court of all pending matters, and may contain such other provisions as may appear to His Majesty to be necessary by reason of the reconstitution or amalgamation

230 Extra-provincial jurisdiction of High Courts—(1) The Governor-General may if satisfied that an agreement in that behalf has been made between the Governments concerned, by order extend the jurisdiction of a High Court in any Province to any area in India not forming part of that Province, and the High Court shall thereupon have the same jurisdiction in relation to that area as it has in relation to any other area in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction.

(2) Nothing in this section affects the provisions of any law or letters patent in force immediately before the establishment of the Dominion empowering any High Court to exercise jurisdiction in relation to more than one Province or in relation to a Province and an area not forming part of any Province.

(3) Where a High Court exercises jurisdiction in relation to any area or areas outside the Province in which it has its principal seat, nothing in this Act shall be construed—

(a) as empowering the Legislature of the Province in which the Court has its principal seat to increase, restrict or abolish that jurisdiction, or

(b) as preventing the Legislature having power to make laws in that behalf for any such area from passing such laws with respect to the jurisdiction of the court in relation to that area as it would be competent to pass if the principal seat of the court were in that area.

231. Saving and definitions—(1) Any judge appointed before the commencement of Part III of this Act to any High Court shall continue in office and shall be deemed to have been appointed under this Part of this Act, but shall not by virtue of this Act be required to relinquish his office at any earlier age than he would have been required so to do if this Act had not been passed.

(2) Where a High Court exercises jurisdiction in relation to more than one Province or in relation to a Province and an area not forming part of a Province, references in this chapter to the Governor in relation to the judges of a High Court, and references to the revenues of the Province shall be construed as references to the Governor and the revenues of the Province in which the Court has its principal seat, and the reference to the approval by the Governor of rules, forms and tables for subordinate courts shall be construed as a reference to the approval thereof by the Governor of the Province in which the subordinate court is situate, or, if it is-situate in an area not forming part of a Province, by the Governor-General

PART X.

The Services of the Crown in India

[This Part except s 232, originally came into force on the 1st April 1937 under para 3 of G.O.M. (G & T Pro) Order Ss 232-239, relating to Defence Service, have now been omitted]

CHAPTER I

Defence Services

Ss 232—239 (Omitted)

CHAPTER II

Civil Services.

General Provisions

240 Tenure of office of persons employed in civil capacities in India —(1) Except as expressly provided by this Act, every person who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India, or holds any civil post under the Crown in India, holds office during His Majesty's pleasure,

(2) No such person as aforesaid who having been appointed by the Secretary of State or the Secretary of State in Council continues after the establishment of the Dominion to serve under the Crown in India shall be dismissed from the service of His Majesty by any authority subordinate to the Governor-General or the Governor according as that person is serving in connection with the affairs of the Dominion or of a Province, and no other such person as aforesaid shall be dismissed from the service of His Majesty by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed

(3) No such person as aforesaid shall be dismissed or reduced in rank until he has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken in regard to him

Provided that this sub-section shall not apply—

(a) where a person is dismissed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct with, has led to his conviction on a criminal charge, or

(b) where an authority empowered to dismiss a person or reduce him in rank is satisfied that for some reason, to be recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to give to that person an opportunity of showing cause

(4) Notwithstanding that a person holding a civil post under the Crown in India holds office during His Majesty's pleasure, any contract under which a person not being a member of a civil service of the Crown in India, is appointed under this Act to hold such a post may, if the Governor-General or, as the case may be the Governor, deems it necessary in order to secure the services of a person having special qualifications, provide for the payment to him of compensation, if before the expiration of an agreed period that post is abolished or he is, for reasons not connected with any misconduct on his part, required to vacate that post

The Federal Court has held that the provisions of this section are mandatory and overriding provisions, and cannot be qualified or restricted in the case of the subordinate ranks of the Police Forces in India by any conditions of service determined by or under the Acts relating to those forces. A distinction is to be drawn between the tenure on which an office is held and the incidents relating to service in the office. The rejection by a higher authority of an appeal against dismissal is not equivalent to a dismissal by that authority itself so as to satisfy the provisions of sub-section (2) of s 240 Sury Narain Anand v North West Frontier Province, (1941) F C R 37

The real point of the sub section is that the person who is to be dismissed or reduced in rank must know that that punishment is proposed as the punishment for certain acts or omissions on his part and must be informed of the grounds on which it is proposed to take such action, and he must also be given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause why such punishment should not be imposed. This sub section is a provision which, while it does not alter the tenure of office during His Majesty's pleasure (s 240 (1)) or the power of dismissal at will, does impose in certain cases certain statutory obligations to be carried out before dismissal is effected, breach of which will give to the person affected adversely a cause of action Secretary of State for India v I M Lall, (1945) F C B 109

In a recent case decided by the Federal Court the Punjab Province v Pandit Tara Chand, that Court has held that sub sections (2), (3) and (4) are statutory limitations upon the right of the Crown to dismiss its servants at will and that to the extent to which they go they are designed to confer security of tenure upon public servants. It is obvious that the prerogative right of the Crown to dismiss its servants at will having been given statutory form in sub section (1) of section 240 it can only be exercised subject to the limitations imposed by the remaining sub sections of that section, and it must follow as a necessary consequence that if any of those limitations is contravened the public servant concerned has a right to maintain an action against the Crown for appropriate relief. There is, in our judgment, no warrant for the proposition that that relief must be limited to a declaration and should not go beyond it

241 Recruitment and conditions of service—(1)

Except as expressly provided by this Act, appointments to the civil services of, and civil posts under, the Crown in India, shall be made —

(a) in the case of services of the Dominion, and posts in connection with the affairs of the Dominion, by the Governor-General or such person as he may direct,

(b) in the case of services of a Province, and posts in connection with the affairs of a Province, by the Governor or such person as he may direct

(2) Except as expressly provided by this Act the conditions of service of persons serving His Majesty in a civil capacity shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be such as may be prescribed—

(c) in the case of persons serving in connection with the affairs of the Dominion, by rules made by the Governor-General or by some person or persons authorised by the Governor-General to make rules for the purpose,

(b) in the case of persons serving in connection with the affairs of a Province, by rules made by the Governor of the Province or by some person or persons authorised by the Governor to make rules for the purpose.

Provided that it shall not be necessary to make rules regulating the conditions of service of persons employed temporarily on the terms that their employment may be terminated on one month's notice or less, and nothing in this sub section shall be construed as requiring the rules regulating the conditions of service of any class of persons to extend to any matter which appears to the rule-making authority to be a matter not suitable for regulation by rule in the case of that class

(3) The said rules shall be so framed as to secure—

(a) that, in the case of a person who before the commencement of Part III of this Act was serving His Majesty, in a civil capacity, no order which alters or interprets to his disadvantage any rule by which his conditions of service are regulated shall be made except by an authority which would have been competent to make such an order on the eighth day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, or by the Governor-General or Governor, as the case may be,

(b) that every such person as aforesaid shall have the same rights of appeal to the same authorities from any order which—

- (i) punishes or formally censures him, or
- (ii) alters or interprets to his disadvantage any rule by which his conditions of service are regulated, or
- (iii) terminates his appointment otherwise than upon his reaching the age fixed for superannuation, as he would have had immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act, or such similar rights of appeal to such corresponding authorities as may be directed by the Governor-General or the Governor as the case may be,

(c) that every other person serving His Majesty in a civil capacity shall have at least one appeal against any such order as aforesaid, not being an order of the Governor-General or a Governor

(4) Notwithstanding anything in this section, but subject to any other provision of this act, Acts of the appropriate Legislature may regulate the conditions of service of persons serving His Majesty in a civil capacity, and any rules made under this section shall have effect subject to the provisions of any such Act

Provided that nothing in any such Act shall have effect so as to deprive any person of any rights required to be given to him by the provisions of the last preceding subsection

(5) No rules made under this section and no Act of any Legislature shall be construed to limit or abridge the power of the Governor-General or a Governor to deal with the case of any person serving His Majesty in a civil capacity in such manner as may appear to him to be just and equitable

Provided that, where any such rule or Act is applicable to the case of any person the case shall not be dealt with in any manner less favourable to him than that provided by that rule or Act

242 Application of preceding section to railway, customs, postal and telegraph services, and officials of courts—

- (1) (Omitted)
- (2) (Omitted)

(3) In framing the rules for the regulation of recruitment to posts in the railway, customs, postal and telegraph services, the Governor General or person authorised by him in that behalf shall have due regard to the past association of the Anglo-Indian community with the said services, and particularly to the specific class, character and numerical percentages of the posts previously held in the said services by members of the said community and to the remuneration attaching to such posts

(4) In its application to appointments to, and to persons serving on, the staff attached to the Federal Court or the staff attached to a High Court the last preceding section shall have effect as if, in the case of the Federal Court, for any reference to the Governor-General in paragraph (a) of subsection (1), "paragraph (a)" of sub-section (2) and in subsection (5) there were substituted a reference to the Chief Justice of India and as if, in the case of a High Court, for any reference to the Governor in paragraph (b) of sub-section (1), in paragraph (b) of sub-section (2) and in sub-section (5) there were substituted a reference to the chief justice of the court

- (a) in the case of the Federal Court, the Governor-General and, in the case of a High Court, the Governor may require that in such cases as he may direct no person not already attached to the court shall be appointed to any office connected with the court save after consultation with the Federal Public Service Commission, or the Provincial Public Service Commission, as the case may be,
- (b) rules made under the said sub-section (2) by a chief justice shall, so far as they relate to salaries, allowances, leave or pensions, require the approval of the Governor General, as the case may be, the Governor

243. Special provisions as to police—Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this chapter, the conditions of service of the subordinate ranks of the various police forces in India shall be such as may be determined by or under the Acts relating to those forces respectively

New Provinces and Alterations of Boundaries of Provinces

289. (Omitted)

290 Creation of new Provinces and alterations of boundaries of Provinces—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section the Governor-General may by Order—

- (a) create a new Province ,
- (b) increase the area of any Province
- (c) diminish the area of any Province

Provided that, before making any such Order the Governor-General shall ascertain the views of the Government of any Province which will be affected by the Order, both with respect to the proposal to make the Order and with respect to the provisions to be inserted therein.

(2) An Order made under this sub-section may contain such provisions as the Governor-General may deem necessary or proper—

- (a) for varying the representation in the Dominion Legislature of any Governor's Province the boundaries of which are altered by the Order,
- (b) for varying the composition of the Legislature of any such Province,
- (c) where a new Governor's Province is created for constituting the Legislature thereof,
- (d) for apportionments and adjustments of and in respect of assets and liabilities, and

Provisions as to Certain Legal Matters ;

292-294 (Omitted)

295 Provisions as to death sentences —

[Subsection (1) (Omitted)]

(2) Nothing in this Act shall derogate from the right of His Majesty, or of the Governor-General, if any such right is delegated to him by His Majesty, to grant pardons, reprieves, respite or remissions of punishment

296 Courts of Appeal in revenue matters —(1) No member of the Dominion Legislature or a Provincial Legislature shall be a member of any tribunal in a Governor's or Chief Commissioner's Province having jurisdiction to entertain appeals or revise decisions in revenue cases)

(2) If in any Province any such jurisdiction as aforesaid was, immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act, vested in the Local Government, the Governor shall constitute a tribunal, consisting of such person or persons as he may think fit, to exercise the same jurisdiction until other provision in that behalf is made by Act of the Provincial Legislature

(3) There shall be paid to the members of any tribunal constituted under the last preceding sub-section, such salaries and allowances as the Governor may determine and those salaries and allowances shall be charged on the revenues of the Province

297 Prohibition of certain restrictions on internal trade —(1) No Provincial Legislature or Government shall—

- (a) by virtue of the entry in the Provincial Legislative List relating to trade and commerce within the Province, or the entry in that list relating to the production, supply, and distribution of commodities, have power, to pass any law or take any executive action prohibiting or restricting the entry into, or export from, the Province of goods of any class or description, or

(b) by virtue of anything in this Act have power to impose any tax, cess, toll, or due which, as between goods manufactured or produced in the Province and similar goods not so manufactured or produced, discriminates in favour of the former, or which, in the case of goods manufactured or produced outside the Province, discriminates between goods manufactured or produced in one locality and similar goods manufactured or produced in another locality

(2) Any law passed in contravention of this section shall, to the extent of the contravention, be invalid

This provision only refers to legislation with respect to entry 27 and entry 29 in the Provincial Legislative List, it has no application to legislation with respect to anything in entry No 31. Provincial legislation deriving its power from any entry other than entry No 27 or entry No 29 of that List cannot therefore be challenged under s 297 (1) (a) Bholu Prasad v King Emperor, (1912) F C R 17

298 Persons not to be subjected to disability by reason of race, religion, &c — (1) No subject of His Majesty domiciled in India shall on grounds only of religion, place of birth, descent, colour or any of them be ineligible for office under the Crown in India, or be prohibited on any such grounds from acquiring holding or disposing of property or carrying on any occupation, trade, business or profession in India

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of any law which—

- (a) prohibits, either absolutely or subject to exceptions, dispositions of agricultural land situated in any particular area and owned by a person belonging to some class recognised by the law as being a class of persons engaged in or connected with agriculture in that area or as being an aboriginal tribe, in favour or for the benefit of any person belonging to that class,
- (b) recognises the existence of some right, privilege or disability attaching to members of a community by virtue of some personal law or custom having the force of law

[Subsection (3) (Omitted)]

(4) In paragraph (a) of sub section (2) of this section, 'agricultural land', in relation to any area where there is in force immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act any law the operation of which is to any extent saved by the said paragraph (a), includes all such property and rights in or over property as are included in the expression 'land' as defined for the purposes of that law as then in force

Those portions of s 15 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act which confer upon the heirs of a vendor a right of pre-emption in respect of sales of lands are not repugnant to the provisions of s 298 (1). The grant of a right to one person to acquire property in preference to other persons does not amount to a prohibition against the acquisition or holding of property by those persons Mohamud Hussain v Sajal Baksh, (1944) F O R 290

The Madras Temple Entry Authorization and Indemnity Act 1939, does not contravene s 298 inasmuch as even assuming that the rights of caste Hindus which have been affected by that Act were "property" within the meaning of that word in the section, the legislation does not amount to a prohibition of the holding of such property on the ground only of religion Manikkasundara Bhattar v R S Nayudu, (1946) F C R 67

The proper test as to whether there is a contravention of sub section (1) of s 298 is to ascertain the reaction of the impugned Act on the personal right conferred by the sub section. The general legislative powers conferred respectively on the Federal Legislature and the Provincial Legislature by s 9 (1) of the Act are subject inter alia, to the provisions of s 298 Punjab Province v Daulat Singh (1946) F C B 1 (P C)

299 Compulsory acquisition of land, &c—(1) No person shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law

(2) Neither the Dominion nor a Provincial Legislature shall have power to make any law authorising the compulsory acquisition for public purposes of any land or any commercial or industrial undertaking or any interest in, or in any company owning, any commercial or industrial undertaking, unless the law provides for the payment of compensation for the property acquired and either fixes the amount of the compensation or specifies the principle on which, and the manner in which, it is to be determined

(3) No Bill or amendment making provision for the transference to public ownership of any land or for the extinguishment or modification of rights therein, including rights or privileges in respect of land revenue, shall be introduced or moved in the Dominion Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General, or in a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of any law in force at the date of the passing of this Act

(5) In this section 'land' includes immovable property of every kind and any rights in or over such property, and "undertaking" includes part of an undertaking

305 Secretarial staff of Governor-General and Governor—(1) The Governor-General and every Governor shall have his own secretarial staff to be appointed by him

(2) The salaries and allowances of persons so appointed and the office accommodation and other facilities to be provided for them shall be such as the Governor-General or, as the case may be, the Governor may determine, and the said salaries and allowances and the expenses incurred in providing the said accommodation and facilities shall be charged on the revenues of the Dominion or, as the case may be, the Province.

(b) without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, to the provisions of the Government of Burma Act, 1935, and to the provisions of the Interpretation Act, 1889 relating to the effect of repeals, this repeal shall not affect any appointment made under any enactment so repealed to any office, and any such appointment shall have effect as if it were an appointment to the corresponding office under this Act or the Government of Burma Act, 1935

In a case turning on the validity of the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act it was contended that on the coming into force of the Government of India Act 1935, all incomplete measures of legislation under the previous Government of India Act lapsed. The Federal Court held that even if the theory of repeal and re-enactment was applicable s. 98 (2) of the Interpretation Act would cure any possible invalidity on that score as the Legislative Assembly had passed the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Bill before the repeal under s. 321 came into force Umgyal Achi v Lakshmi Achi, (1945) F.C.R.I

47 Salt

The question is whether the power of the Central Legislature to impose duties or taxes on salt is derived from entry No. 47, or entries No. 44 and 45 of List I. The effect of the combined operation of entry 47 of List I and of s. 100 (1) of the Constitution Act is to deny to the Provincial Legislature the power to make laws with respect to salt. *Administrator Lahore Municipality v. The effect of the opening words of sub section (1) of s 100, "notwithstanding anything in the two next succeeding sub sections" and of the opening words in sub section (3) of s 100 of the Govt of India Act "subject to the two preceding sub-sections" is that if the legislative powers of the Federal and Provincial Legislatures enumerated in List I and List II of the 7th Schedule cannot be fairly reconciled, the latter must give way to the former. It is right however first to consider whether a fair reconciliation cannot be effected by giving to the language of the Federal Legislative List, a meaning which, if less wide than it might in another context bear, is yet one that can properly be given to it and equally giving to the language of the Provincial Legislative List a meaning which it can properly bear Governor General in Council v the Province of Madras, 1945 FCR 179

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the extension of the said period is passed by the Dominion Legislature, the said period shall be extended for a further period of twelve months from the date on which it would otherwise expire so, however that it does not in any case continue for more than five years from the date on which the Proclamation of Emergency ceases to operate.

PART III.

The main statutory provisions have been dealt with in the preceding Parts—Parts I and II. It now remains for us, in this Part, to trace the events leading up to the establishment of the two Dominions and the steps taken by the Governor-General consequential on and in connection with the setting up of the Dominions.

In the statement made by His Majesty's Government on June 3, 1947, the final decision was announced, and all action which has since been taken is in accordance with that decision. A reference should therefore be made first to that important pronouncement.

STATEMENT BY HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT

ON JUNE 3 1947

The following is the announcement by His Majesty's Government which was issued from the Viceroy's House, New Delhi, on June 3rd, 1947.

Introduction

1 On February 20th, 1947, His Majesty's Government announced their intention of transferring power in British India to Indian hands by June 1948. His Majesty's Government had hoped that it would be possible for the major parties to co-operate in the working out of the Cabinet Mission's Plan of May 1946 and evolve for India a Constitution acceptable to all concerned. This hope has not been fulfilled.

2 The majority of the representatives of the Provinces of Madras, Bombay, the United Provinces, Bihar, Central Provinces and Berar, Assam, Orissa and the North-West Frontier Province, and the representatives of Delhi, Ajmer-Merwara and Coorg have already made progress in the task of evolving a new Constitution. On the other hand, the Muslim League Party, including in it a majority of the representatives of Bengal, the Punjab and Sind as also the representative of British Baluchistan, has decided not to participate in the Constituent Assembly.

3 It has always been the desire of His Majesty's Government that power should be transferred in accordance with the wishes of the Indian people themselves. This task would have been greatly facilitated if there had been agreement among the Indian political parties. In the absence of such agreement the task of devising a method by which the wishes of the Indian people can be ascertained has devolved upon His Majesty's Government. After full consultation with political leaders in India, His Majesty's Government have decided to adopt for this purpose the plan set out below. His Majesty's Government wish to make it clear that they have no intention of attempting to frame any ultimate Constitution for India, this is a matter for the Indians themselves. Nor is there anything in this plan to preclude negotiations between communities for a united India.

The Issues To Be Decided

4 It is not the intention of His Majesty's Government to interrupt the work of the existing Constituent Assembly. Now that provision is made for certain Provinces specified below, His Majesty's Government trust that, as a consequence of this announcement, the Muslim League representatives of those Provinces, a majority of whose representatives are already participating in it, will now take their due share in its labours. At the same time, it is clear that any Constitution framed by this Assembly cannot apply to those parts of the country which are unwilling to accept it. His Majesty's Government are satisfied that the procedure outlined below embodies the best practical method of ascertaining the wishes of the people of such areas on the issue whether their Constitution is to be framed.—

- (a) in the existing Constituent Assembly, or
- (b) in a new and separate Constituent Assembly consisting of the representatives of those areas which decide not to participate in the existing Constituent Assembly

When this has been done it will be possible to determine the authority or authorities to whom power should be transferred.

Bengal And The Punjab

5 The Provincial Legislative Assemblies of Bengal and the Punjab (excluding the European members) will, therefore, each be asked to meet in two parts, one representing the Muslim majority districts and the other the rest of the Province. For the purpose of determining the population of districts, the 1941 census figures will be taken as authoritative. The Muslim majority districts in these two Provinces are set out in the Appendix to this Announcement.

6 The members of the two parts of each Legislative Assembly sitting separately will be empowered to vote whether or not the Province should be partitioned. If a simple majority of either part decides in favour of partition division will take place and arrangements will be made accordingly.

7 Before the question as to the partition is decided, it is desirable that the representatives of each part should know in advance which Constituent Assembly the Province as a whole would join in the event of the two parts subsequently deciding to remain united. Therefore, if any member of either Legislative Assembly so demands, there shall be held a meeting of all members of the Legislative Assembly (other than Europeans) at which a decision will be taken on the issue as to which Constituent Assembly the Province as a whole would join if it were decided by the two parts to remain united.

8 In the event of partition being decided upon, each part of the Legislative Assembly will, on behalf of the areas they represent, decide which of the alternatives in paragraph 4 above to adopt.

9 For the immediate purpose of deciding on the issue of partition, the members of the Legislative Assemblies of Bengal and the Punjab will sit in two parts according to Muslim majority districts (as laid down in the Appendix) and non-Muslim majority districts. This is only a preliminary step of a purely temporary nature as it is evident that for the purposes of a final partition of these Provinces a detailed investigation of boundary questions will be needed, and, as soon as a decision involving partition has been taken for either Province, a Boundary Commission will be set up by the Governor-General, the membership and terms of reference of which will be settled in consultation with those concerned. It will be instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of the Punjab on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. It will also be instructed to take into account other factors. Similar instructions will be given to the Bengal Boundary Commission. Until the report of a Boundary Commission has been put into effect, the provisional boundaries indicated in the Appendix will be used.

Sind

10 The Legislative Assembly of Sind (excluding the European members) will at a special meeting also-take its own decision on the alternatives in paragraph 4 above

North-West Frontier Province

11 The position of the North-West Frontier Province is exceptional. Two of the three representatives of this Province are already participating in the existing Constituent Assembly. But it is clear, in view of its geographical situation, and other considerations, that if the whole or any part of the Punjab decides not to join the existing Constituent Assembly, it will be necessary to give the North-West Frontier Province an opportunity to reconsider its position. Accordingly, in such an event, a referendum will be made to the electors of the present Legislative Assembly in the North-West Frontier Province to choose which of the alternatives mentioned in paragraph 4 above they wish to adopt. The referendum will be held under the aegis of the Governor-General and in consultation with the Provincial Government.

British Baluchistan.

12 British Baluchistan has elected a member, but he has not taken his seat in the existing Constituent Assembly. In view of its geographical situation, this Province will also be given an opportunity to reconsider its position and to choose which of the alternatives in paragraph 4 above to adopt. His Excellency the Governor-General is examining how this can most appropriately be done.

Assam

13 Though Assam is predominantly a non-Muslim Province, the district of Sylhet which is contiguous to Bengal is predominantly Muslim. There has been a demand that, in the event of the partition of Bengal, Sylhet should be amalgamated with the Muslim part of Bengal. Accordingly, if it is decided that Bengal should be partitioned, a referendum will be held in Sylhet district under the aegis of the Governor-General and in consultation with the Assam Provincial Government to decide whether the district of Sylhet should continue to form part of the Assam Province or should be amalgamated with the new Province of Eastern Bengal, if that Province agrees. If the referendum results in favour of amalgamation with Eastern Bengal, a Boundary Commission with terms of reference similar to those for the Punjab and Bengal will be set up to demarcate the Muslim majority areas of Sylhet district, and contiguous Muslim majority areas of adjoining districts, which will then be transferred to Eastern Bengal. The rest of the Assam Province will in any case continue to participate in the proceedings of the existing Constituent Assembly

Representation in Constituent Assemblies

14 If it is decided that Bengal and the Punjab should be partitioned, it will be necessary to hold fresh elections to choose their representatives on the scale of one for every million of population according to the principle contained in the Cabinet Mission's Plan of May 16th, 1946. Similar elections will also have to be held for Sylhet in the event of it being decided that this district should form part of East Bengal. The number of representatives to which each area would be entitled is as follows —

Description of Constituency		No. of Members
Province	General	Muslims	Sikhs	Total
Sylhet District	1	2	Nil	3
West Bengal	15	4	Nil	19
East Bengal	12	29	Nil	41
West Punjab	3	12	2	17
East Punjab	6	4	2	12

15 In accordance with the mandates given to them, the representatives of the various areas will either join the existing Constituent Assembly or form the new Constituent Assembly.

Administrative Matters.

16 Negotiations will have to be initiated as soon as possible on the administrative consequences of any partition that may have been decided upon —

- (a) Between the representatives of the respective successor authorities about all subjects now dealt with by the Central Government, including Defence, Finance and Communications
- (b) Between different successor authorities and His Majesty's Government for treaties in regard to matters arising out of the transfer of power
- (c) In the case of Provinces that may be partitioned, as to the administration of all provincial subjects such as the division of assets and liabilities, the police and other services, the High Courts, provincial institutions etc

The Tribes Of The North-West Frontier

17 Agreements with tribes of the North-West Frontier

tier of India will have to be negotiated by the appropriate successor authority

The States

18 His Majesty's Government wish to make it clear that the decisions announced above relate only to British India and that their policy towards Indian States contained in the Cabinet Mission Memorandum of 12th May 1946 remains unchanged

Necessity For Speed

19 In order that the successor authorities may have time to prepare themselves to take over power, it is important that all the above processes should be completed as quickly as possible. To avoid delay, the different Provinces or parts of Provinces will proceed independently as far as practicable within the conditions of this Plan. The existing Constituent Assembly and the new Constituent Assembly (if formed) will proceed to frame Constitutions for their respective territories they will of course be free to frame their own rules.

Immediate Transfer of Power

20 The major political parties have repeatedly emphasized their desire that there should be the earliest possible transfer of power in India. With this desire His Majesty's Government are in full sympathy, and they are willing to anticipate the date of June, 1948, for the handing over of power by the setting up of an independent Indian Government or Governments at an even earlier date. Accordingly, as the most expeditious, and indeed the only practicable way of meeting this desire, His Majesty's Government propose to introduce legislation during the current session for the transfer of power this year on a Dominion Status basis to one or two successor authorities according to the decisions taken as a result of this announcement. This will be without prejudice to the right of the Indian Constituent Assemblies to decide in due course whether or not the part of India in respect of which they have authority will remain within the British Commonwealth.

Further Announcements by Governor-General

21 His Excellency the Governor-General will from time to time make such further announcements as may be necessary in regard to procedure or any other matters for carrying out the above arrangements.

H E THE VICEROY'S MESSAGE

The above statement represented the final decision of His Majesty's Government as to the method by which power was to be transferred from British to Indian hands. The Plan was explained by His Excellency the Viceroy in his address broadcast to the people on the 3rd June 1947. In the course of his address His Excellency observed as follows —

“Since my arrival in India at the end of March I have spent almost every day in consultation with as many of the leaders and representatives of as many communities and interests as possible. Nothing I have seen or heard in the past few weeks has shaken my firm opinion that with reasonable measure of goodwill between the communities a unified India would be by far the best solution of the problem. For more than a hundred years 400 millions of you have lived together and this country has been administered as a single entity. This has resulted in unified communications, defence, postal services and currency, an absence of tariffs and customs barriers, and the basis for an integrated political economy. My great hope was that communal differences would not destroy all this. My first course, in all my discussions, was therefore to urge the political leaders to accept unreservedly the Cabinet Mission plan of 16th May 1946. In my opinion that plan provides the best arrangement that can be devised to meet the interests of all the communities of India. To my great regret it has been impossible to obtain agreement either on the Cabinet Mission plan, or on any other plan that would preserve the unity of India. But there can be no question of coercing any large areas in which one community has a majority, to live against their will under a Government in which another community has a majority. And the only alternative to coercion is partition. But when the Muslim League demanded the partition of India Congress used the same arguments for demanding in that event the partition of certain Provinces. To my mind this argument is unassailable. In fact neither side proved willing to leave a substantial area in which their community have a majority under the Government of the other. I am, of course, just as much opposed to the partition of Provinces as I am to the partition of India herself and for the same basic reasons. For just as I feel there is an Indian consciousness which should transcend communal differences so I feel there is a Punjabi and Bengali consciousness which has evoked a loyalty to their Province. And so I felt it was essential that the people of India themselves should decide this question of partition.

"The procedure for enabling them to decide for themselves whether they want the British to hand over power to one or two Governments is set out in the statement which will be read to you. But there are one or two points on which I should like to add a note of explanation. It was necessary in order to ascertain the will of the people of the Punjab, Bengal and part of Assam to lay down boundaries between the Muslim majority areas and the remaining areas, but I want to make it clear that the ultimate boundaries will be settled by a Boundary Commission and will almost certainly not be identical with those which have been provisionally adopted. We have given careful consideration to the position of the Sikhs. This valiant community forms about an eighth of the population of the Punjab, but they are so distributed that any partition of this Province will inevitably divide them. All of us who have the good of the Sikh community at heart are very sorry to think that the partition of the Punjab, which they themselves desire, cannot avoid splitting them to a greater or lesser extent. The exact degrees of the split will be left to the Boundary Commission.

on which they will of course be represented

"The whole plan may not be perfect, but like all plans, its success will depend on the spirit of goodwill with which it is carried out. I have always felt that once it was decided in what way to transfer power, the transfer should take place at the earliest possible moment, but the dilemma was that if we waited until a constitutional set-up for all India was agreed, we should have to wait a long time, particularly if partition were decided on. Whereas if we handed over power before the Constituent Assemblies had finished their work we should leave the country without a Constitution. The solution to this dilemma, which I put forward, is that His Majesty's Government should transfer power now to one or two Governments of British India each having Dominion Status as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. This I hope will be within the next few months. I am glad to announce that His Majesty's Government have accepted this proposal and are already having legislation prepared for introduction in Parliament this session. As a result of these decisions the special function of the India Office will no longer have to be carried out, and some other machinery will be set up to conduct future relations between His Majesty's Government and India."

"I wish to emphasise that this legislation will not impose any restriction on the power of India as a whole, or of the two States if there is partition, to decide in the future their relationship to each other and to other member States of the British Commonwealth. Thus the way is now open to an arrangement by which power can be transferred many months earlier than the most optimistic of us thought possible and at the same time leave it to the people of British India to decide for themselves on their future, which is the declared policy of His Majesty's Government. I have made no mention of the Indian States since the new decisions of His Majesty's Government are concerned with the transfer of power in British India."

Whereas sub-section (3) of section 18 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947 (hereafter in the recitals to this Order referred to as 'the said Act') provides that save as otherwise expressly provided in this said Act, the law of British India and of the several parts thereof existing immediately before the appointed day shall, so far as applicable and with the necessary adaptations, continue as the law of each of the new Dominions and the several parts thereof, until other provision is made by laws of the Legislature of the Dominion in question or by any other Legislature or other authority having power in that behalf,

And whereas sub-section (1) of section 9 of the said Act provides that the Governor-General shall by order make such provision as appears to him to be necessary or expedient for bringing the provisions of the said Act into effective operation and for removing difficulties arising in connection with the transition to the provisions of the said Act,

Now therefore in exercise of the powers conferred by the said Act, the Governor-General is pleased to make the following Order —

“existing Indian law” means any Act, Ordinance, Regulation, rule, order or bye-law which immediately before the appointed day has the force of law in the whole or any part of the territories which as from that day form the territories of the Dominion of India, but does not include any Act of Parliament, or any Order in Council, rule or other instrument made under an Act of Parliament, or the General Clauses Act, 1897

(2) The General Clauses Act, 1897, applies for the interpretation of this Order as it applies for the interpretation of a Central Act

3 As from the appointed day, all existing Indian laws shall until repealed or altered or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority, in their application to the Dominion of India and any part or parts thereof, be subject to the adaptations directed in this Order

4 (1) Where an existing Indian law contains a provision defining the territories to which the law extends, or a provision referring to the territories which are within the scope of that provision, that provision shall be so adapted as to exclude any territories which on the appointed day are not to form part of the territories of the Dominion of India

(2) Without prejudice to the general effect of the preceding paragraph, references in any existing Indian law to “the whole of British India” (or “British India”), to “Bengal” and to “the Punjab” shall, except where the reference occurs in a title or preamble or any citation or description of an Act, Ordinance or Regulation and except where the context otherwise requires, be replaced by references to “all the Provinces of India”, to “West Bengal” and to “East Punjab”, respectively

5 Any reference in an existing Indian law to a High Court which as from the appointed day ceases to be a High Court for any part of the Dominion of India shall—

(a) if the reference be to the High Court of Judicature at Lahore, be replaced by a reference to the High Court of East Punjab, and
(b) in any other case, be omitted

7 Any reference in an existing Indian law to the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relation with Indian States (including any provision the operation of which depends on the exercise of such functions) shall be omitted, and references in any such law to the Crown Representative shall be omitted or construed as references to the Central Government as the context may require

10 Any court, tribunal or authority required or empowered to enforce an existing Indian law shall, notwithstanding that this Order makes no provision or insufficient provision for the adaptation of the law for the purpose of rendering it consistent with the provisions of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, and of the Government of India Act, 1935, as applicable to the Dominion of India, construe the law with all such adaptations as are necessary for the said purpose

. Provided that if any question arises regarding the adaptations with which such law should be construed for the said purpose, the question shall be referred to the Central Government if the law relates to a matter enumerated in List I or List III in the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935, and to the Provincial Government in any other case, and the decision of that Government on any such reference shall be final

11 The General Clauses Act, 1897, shall in its application to the Dominion of India, until repealed or altered or amended by the Central Legislature, be subject to the adaptations specified in the Schedule to this Order

12 The provisions of this Order shall not render invalid anything duly done before the appointed day under an existing Indian law, and anything so done for British India or for parts thereof including territories thereafter included in the Dominion of India shall, as from the appointed day and until altered, varied or undone, have effect

as if it had been done after the appointed day for the whole of the Dominion of India or as the case may be, for such territories thereof as aforesaid, by a competent authority and under and in accordance with the provisions then applicable to the case

13 If by order under section 9 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, provision is made for authorising the continued carrying on for the time being on behalf of the new Dominions or on behalf of any two or more of the Provinces therein referred to as the said new Provinces of services or activities previously carried on under the authority of an existing Indian law on behalf of British India as a whole or on behalf of the former Provinces which those new Provinces represent, then, notwithstanding anything herein contained, such law shall, as from the appointed day, or where the order under the said section 9 is made after the appointed day, as from the date of the making of the order, have effect in its application to the Dominion of India according to the tenor of that order certain parts and it is only because there was an agreement between the parties to the arbitration proceedings to abide by the decisions of the Boundary Commissions that they propose for the present to accept the boundaries determined by them. APPENDIX III

Statement made by the Cabinet Mission to India and His Excellency the Viceroy on May 16th, 1946.

1 On the 15th March last, just before the despatch of the Cabinet Mission to India, Mr Attlee, the British Prime Minister, used these words —

"My colleagues are going to India with the intention of using their utmost endeavours to help her to attain her freedom as speedily and fully as possible. What form of Government is to replace the present regime is for India to decide, but our desire is to help her to set up forthwith the machinery for making that decision."

"I hope that the Indian people may elect to remain within the British Commonwealth. I am certain that she will find great advantages in doing so."

"But if she does so elect, it must be by her own free will. The British Commonwealth and Empire is not bound together by chains of external compulsion. It is a free association of free people. If, on the other hand she elects for independence, in our view she has a right to do so. It will be for us to help to make the transition as smooth and easy as possible."

2 Charged in these historic words, we—the Cabinet Ministers and the Viceroy—have done our utmost to assist the two main political parties to reach agreement upon the fundamental issue of the unity or division of India. After prolonged discussions in New Delhi we succeeded in bringing in the Congress and the Muslim League together in conference at Simla. There was a full exchange of views and both parties were prepared to make considerable concessions in order to try to reach a settlement, but it ultimately proved impossible to close the remainder of the gap between the parties and so no agreement could be concluded. Since no agreement has been reached, we feel that it is our duty to put forward what we consider are the best arrangements possible to ensure speedy setting up of the new constitution. This statement is made with the full approval of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom

3 We have accordingly decided that immediate arrangements should be made whereby Indians may decide the future constitution of India and an interim Government may be set up at once to carry on the administration of British India until such time as a new constitution can be brought into being. We have endeavoured to be just to the smaller as well as to the larger sections of the people, and to recommend a solution which will lead to a practicable way of governing the India of the future, and will give a sound basis for defence and a good opportunity for progress in the social, political and economic field.

4 It is not intended in this statement to review the voluminous evidence which has been submitted to the Mission, but it is right that we should state that it has shown an almost universal desire, outside the supporters of the Muslim League, for the unity of India.

5 This consideration did not however, deter us from examining closely and impartially the possibility of a partition of India, since we were greatly impressed by the very genuine and acute anxiety of the Muslims lest they should find themselves subject to a perpetual Hindu-majority rule. This feeling has become so strong and widespread amongst the Muslims that it cannot be allayed by mere paper safeguards. If there is to be internal peace in India it must be secured by measures which will assure to the Muslims a control in all matters vital to their culture, religion, and economic or other interests.

6 We therefore examined in the first instance the question of a separate and fully independent sovereign state of Pakistan as claimed by the Muslim League. Such a Pakistan would comprise two areas one in the North-West consisting of the provinces of the Punjab, Sind, North-West Frontier and British Baluchistan the other in the North-East consisting of the provinces of Bengal and Assam. The League were prepared to consider adjustment of boundaries at a later stage, but insisted that the principle of Pakistan should first be acknowledged. The argument for a separate state of Pakistan was based first, upon the right of the Muslim majority to decide their method of government according to their wishes and secondly, upon the necessity to include substantial areas in which Muslims are in a minority, in order to make Pakistan administratively and economically workable.

The size of the non-Muslim minorities in a Pakistan comprising the whole of the six provinces enumerated above would be very considerable as the following figures* show —

North-Western Area—

	Muslims	Non-Muslim
Punjab	16,217,242	12,201,577
North-West Frontier Province	2,781,797	249,270
Sind	3,208,325	1,326,683
British Baluchistan	488,930	62,701
	22,653,294	13,840,231
	62.07 per cent	37.62 per cent

North-Eastern Area—

Bengal	33,005,434	27,301,091
Assam	3,442,479	6,769,254
	36,447,913	34,063,345
	51.69 per cent	48.31 per cent

The Muslim minorities in the remainder of British India number some 30 million dispersed amongst a total population of 188 million.

These figures show that the setting up of a separate sovereign state of Pakistan on the lines claimed by the Muslim League would not solve the communal minority problem, nor can we see any justification for including within a sovereign Pakistan those districts of the Punjab and of Bengal and Assam in which the population is predominantly non-Muslim. Every argument that can be used in favour of Pakistan can equally, in our view, be used in favour of the exclusion of the non-Muslim areas from Pakistan. This point would particularly affect the position of the Sikhs.

7 We, therefore, considered whether a smaller sovereign Pakistan confined to the Muslim majority areas alone might be a possible basis of compromise. Such a Pakistan is regarded by the Muslim League as quite impracticable because it would entail the exclusion from Pakistan of (b) the whole of the Ambala and Jullundur divisions in the Punjab, (c) the whole of Assam except the district of Sylhet, and (e) a large part of Western Bengal including Calcutta, in which city the percentage of the Muslim population is 23.6 per cent. We ourselves are also convinced that any solution which involves a radical partition of the Punjab and Bengal, as this would do, would be contrary to the wishes and interests of a very large proportion of the inhabitants of these provinces.

* All population figures in this statement are from the most recent census taken in 1941.

Bengal and the Punjab each has its own common language and a long history and tradition. Moreover, any division of the Punjab would of necessity divide the Sikhs leaving on both sides of the boundary. We have therefore been forced to the conclusion that neither a larger nor a smaller sovereign state of Pakistan would provide an acceptable solution for the communal problem.

8 Apart from the great force of the foregoing arguments there are weighty administrative, economic and military considerations. The whole of the transportation and postal and telegraph systems of India have been established on the basis of a united India. To disintegrate them would gravely injure both parts of India. The case for a united defence is even stronger. The Indian Armed Forces have been built up as a whole for the defence of India as a whole, and to break them in two would inflict a deadly blow on the long traditions and high degree of efficiency of the Indian Army and would entail the gravest dangers. The Indian Navy and Indian Air Force would become much less effective. The two sections of the suggested Pakistan contain the two most vulnerable frontiers in India and for a successful defence in depth the area of Pakistan would be insufficient.

9 A further consideration of importance is the greater difficulty which the Indian States would find in associating themselves with a divided British India.

10 Finally, there is the geographical fact that the two halves of the proposed Pakistan state are separated by some seven hundred miles and the communications between them both in war and peace would be dependent on the goodwill of Hindustan.

11 We are therefore unable to advise the British Government that the power which at present resides in British hands should be handed over to two entirely separate sovereign states.

12 This decision does not, however, blind us to the very real Muslim apprehensions that their culture and political and social life might become submerged in a purely unitary India, in which the Hindus with their greatly superior numbers must be a dominating element. To meet this the Congress have put forward a scheme under which provinces would have full autonomy subject only to a minimum of central subjects, such as foreign affairs, defence and communications.

Under this scheme provinces if they wished to take part in economic and administrative planning on a large scale could cede to the centre optional subjects in addition to the compulsory ones mentioned above.

13 Such a scheme would, in our view present considerable constitutional disadvantages and anomalies. It would be very difficult to work a central executive and legislature in which some ministers, who dealt with compulsory subjects, were responsible to the whole of India while other ministers, who dealt with optional subjects, would be responsible only to those provinces who had elected to act together in respect of such subjects. This difficulty would be accentuated in the central legislature, where it would be necessary to exclude certain members from speaking and voting when subjects with which their provinces were not concerned were under discussion. Apart from the difficulty of working such a scheme, we do not consider that it would be fair to deny to other provinces, which did not desire to take the optional subjects at the centre, the right to form themselves into a group for a similar purpose. This would indeed be no more than the exercise of their autonomous powers in a particular way.

14 Before putting forward our recommendations we turn to deal with the relationship of the Indian States to British India. It is quite clear that with the attainment of independence by British India, whether inside or outside the British Commonwealth, the relationship which has hitherto existed between the Rulers of the States and the British Crown will no longer be possible. Paramountcy can neither be retained by the British Crown nor transferred to the new government. This fact has been fully recognised by those whom we interviewed from the States. They have at the same time assured us that the States are ready and willing to co-operate in the new development of India. The precise form which their co-operation will take must be a matter for negotiation during the building up of the new constitutional structure and it by no means follows that it will be identical for all the States. We have not therefore dealt with the States in the same detail as the provinces of British India in the paragraphs which follow.

15 We now indicate the nature of a solution which in our view would be just to the essential claims of all parties and would at the same time be most likely to bring about a stable and practicable form of constitution for All-India.

We recommend that the constitution should take the following basic form —

- (1) There should be a Union of India, embracing both British India and the States which should deal with the following subjects foreign affairs, defence, and communications, and should have the powers necessary to raise the finances required for the above subjects
- (2) The Union should have an executive and a legislative constituted from British Indian and States representatives Any question raising a major communal issue in the legislature should require for its decision a majority of the representatives present and voting of each of the two major communities as well as a majority of all the members present and voting
- (3) All subjects other than the Union subjects and residuary powers should vest in the provinces
- (4) The States will retain all subjects and powers other than those ceded to the Union
- (5) Provinces should be free to form groups with executive and legislatures and each group could determine the provincial subjects to be taken in common
- (6) The constitutions of the Union and of the groups should contain a provision whereby any province could by a majority vote of its legislative assembly call for a reconsideration of the terms of the constitution after an initial period of ten years and at ten-yearly intervals thereafter

16 It is not our object to lay out the details of a constitution on the above programme but to set in motion machinery whereby a constitution can be settled by Indians for Indians

It has been necessary, however, for us to make this recommendation as to the broad basis of the future constitution because it became clear to us in the course of our negotiations that not until that had been done was there any hope of getting the two major communities to join in the setting up of the constitution-making machinery

17. We now indicate the constitution-making machinery which we propose should be brought into being forthwith in order to enable a new constitution to be worked out,

18 In forming any assembly to decide a new constitutional structure the first problem is to obtain as broad-based and accurate a representation of the whole population as is possible. The most satisfactory method obviously would be by election based on adult franchise, but any attempt to introduce such a step now would lead to a wholly unacceptable delay in the formulation of the new constitution. The only practicable course is to utilise the recently elected Provincial Legislative Assemblies as electing bodies. There are, however, two factors in their composition which make this difficult. First, the numerical strengths of Provincial Legislative Assemblies do not bear the same proportion to the total population in each province. Thus, Assam with a population of 10 million, has a Legislative Assembly of 198 members, while Bengal, with a population six times as large, has an Assembly of only 250. Secondly, owing to the weightage given to minorities by the Communal Award, the strengths of the several communities in each Provincial Legislative Assembly are not in proportion to their numbers in the province. Thus the number of seats reserved for Moslems in the Bengal Legislative Assembly is only 48 per cent. of the total, although they form 55 per cent. of the provincial population. After a most careful consideration of the various methods by which these points might be corrected, we have come to the conclusion that the fairest and most practicable plan would be—

- (a) to allot to each province a total number of seats proportional to its population, roughly in the ratio of one to a million, as the nearest substitute for representation by adult suffrage.
- (b) to divide this provincial allocation of seats between the main communities in each province in proportion to their population.
- (c) to provide that the representatives allocated to each community in a province shall be elected by members of that community in its Legislative Assembly.

We think that for these purposes it is sufficient to recognise only three main communities in India, General, Moslem and Sikh, the "General" Community including all persons who are not Moslems or Sikhs. As smaller minorities would upon a population basis have little or no representation, since they would lose the weightage which assures them seats in Provincial Legislatures, we have made the arrangements set out in paragraph 20 below to give them a full representation upon all matters of special interest to minorities.

19 (t) We therefore propose that there shall be elected by each Provincial Legislative Assembly (General, Moslem or Sikh) electing its own representatives by the method of proportional representation with single transferable vote —

NOTE — In order to represent the Chief Commissioners' Provinces there will be added to Section A the member representing Delhi in the Central Legislative Assembly, the member representing Ajmer-Merwara in the Central Legislative Assembly and a representative to be elected by the Coorg Legislative Council.

To Section B will be added a representative of British Baluchistan

(ii) It is the intention that the States would be given in the final Constituent Assembly appropriate representation which would not, on the basis of the calculation of population adopted for British India, exceed '93', but the method of selection will have to be determined by consultation. The States would in the preliminary stage be represented by a negotiating committee

(iii) Representatives thus chosen shall meet at New Delhi as soon as possible

(iv) A preliminary meeting will be held at which the general order of business will be decided, a chairman and other officers elected and an Advisory Committee (see paragraph 20 below) on rights of citizens, minorities and excluded areas set up. Thereafter the provincial representatives will divide up into three sections shown under A, B and C in the Table of Representation in sub-paragraph (i) of this paragraph

(v) These sections shall proceed to settle provincial constitutions for the provinces included in each section and shall also decide whether any group constitution shall be set up for those provinces and if so with what provincial subjects the group should deal. Provinces should have power to opt out of groups in accordance with the provisions of sub-clause (viii) below

(vi) The representatives of the sections and the Indian States shall reassemble for the purpose of settling the Union constitution

(vii) In the Union Constituent Assembly resolutions varying the provisions of paragraph 15 above or raising any major communal issue shall require a majority of the representatives present and voting of each of the two major communities. The Chairman of the Assembly shall decide which, if any, resolutions raise major communal issues and shall, if so requested by a majority of the representatives of either of the major communities, consult the Federal Court before giving the decision

(viii) As soon as the new constitutional arrangements have come into operation it shall be open to any province to elect to come out of any group in which it has been placed. Such a decision shall be taken by the legislature of the province after the first general election under the new constitution

20. The Advisory Committee on the rights of citizens, minorities and tribal and excluded areas will contain due representation of the interests affected and their function will be to report to the Union Constituent Assembly upon the list of fundamental rights clauses for protecting minorities, and a scheme for the administration of tribal and excluded areas, and to advise whether these rights should be incorporated in the provincial, the group or the Union constitutions.

21 His Excellency the Viceroy will forthwith request the provincial legislatures to proceed with the election of their representatives and the States to set up a negotiating Committee.

It is hoped that the process of constitution-making can proceed as rapidly as the complexities of the task permit so that the interim period may be as short as possible.

22 It will be necessary to negotiate a treaty between the Union Constituent Assembly and the United Kingdom to provide for certain matters arising out of the transfer of power.

23 While the constitution-making proceeds the administration of India has to be carried on. We attach the greatest importance therefore to the setting up at once of an interim Government having the support of the major political parties. It is essential during the interim period that there should be the maximum of co-operation in carrying through the difficult tasks that face the Government of India. Besides the heavy tasks of day-to-day administration, there is the grave danger of famine to be countered, there are decisions to be taken in many matters of post-war development which will have a far-reaching effect on India's future and there are important international conferences in which India has to be represented. For all these purposes a government having popular support is necessary. The Viceroy has already started discussions to this end and hopes soon to form an interim Government in which all the portfolios, including that of War Member will be held by Indian leaders having the full confidence of the people. The British Government, recognising the significance of the changes, will give the fullest measure of co-operation to the Government so formed in the accomplishment of its tasks of administration and in bringing about as rapid and smooth a transition as possible.

24 To the leaders and people of India, who now have the opportunity of complete independence, we would finally say this. We and our Government and countrymen hoped that it would be possible for the Indian people themselves to agree upon the method of framing the new Constitution under which they will live Despite the labours which we have shared with the Indian parties and the exercise of much patience and good-will by all, this has not been possible. We, therefore, now lay before you proposals which, after listening to all sides and after much earnest thought we trust will enable you to attain your independence in the shortest time and with the least danger of internal disturbance and conflict. These proposals may not, of course, completely satisfy all parties, but you will recognise with us that, at this supreme moment in Indian history, statesmanship demands mutual accommodation and we ask you to consider the alternative to the acceptance of these proposals. After all the efforts which we and the Indian parties have made together for agreement, we must state that, in our view, there is small hope of a peaceful settlement by the agreement of the Indian parties alone. The alternative would, therefore be a grave danger of violence, chaos and even civil war. The gravity and duration of such disturbance cannot be foreseen, but it is certain that it would be a terrible disaster for many millions of men, women and children. This is a possibility which must be regarded with equal abhorrence by the Indian people, our own countrymen and the world as a whole. We therefore lay these proposals before you in the profound hope that they will be accepted and operated by you in the spirit of accommodation and goodwill in which they are offered. We appeal to all who have the future good of India at heart to extend their vision beyond their own community or interest to the interests of the whole 400 millions of Indian people.

We hope that the new independent India may choose to be a member of the British Commonwealth. We hope, in any event, that you will remain in close and friendly association with our people. But these are matters for your own free choice. Whatever that choice may be, we look forward with you to your ever-increasing prosperity among the greatest nations of the world and to a future even more glorious than your past.
